WE NOMINATE

Arthur Washington Lithgow, able and long-visioned Executive Director of McCarter Theatre, who this week — supported by Governor Hughes' proclamation of "McCarter Theatre Day" and the contagious enthusiasm of educators throughout New Jersey — enters upon an 8-month season which between now and spring's end can be expected to attract nearly 125,000 persons to the massive structure looming large on the southeastern segment of the Princeton "sky-line." With Lithgow, in his third month as McCarter's top executive and his third year as a full-time Princetonian, rests McCarter's on-going development as a full-fledged center for the performing arts.

Tapped in late summer by University President Robert F. Goheen as successor to Milton Lyon (continuing as an informal adviser to McCarter and as director of the McCarter-based Princeton Triangle Club), the 18-year old Lithgow "breathes and lives the theater" and is the kind of driver who works 'round the clock in seeking to stretch McCarter's out-reach. The high aspirations he and the University hold for McCarter are reflected in the event-packed program projected for the year ahead: drama series in both fall and spring, major musical events, film programs, special attractions with emphasis on the ballet, and Princeton-grown productions (e.g., The Savoyards and The P. J. & B. Players).

It was in 1961 that The New York Times turned its eyes toward Princeton and described the McCarter undertaking as "an experiment that could be of momentous significance to the American theatre" and a venture "to be watched by our institutions of higher learning." Since then, with Lithgow's arrival on the scene as Associate Producer and Educational Coordinator, McCarter as New Jersey's lone year-'round legitimate theatre has been phenomenally successful in rebutting the contention of a distinguished New Jersey educator who several years ago described this State as a sort of cultural desert."

Over the past two years Lithgow has literally "stumped" New Jersey, making scores of school visits, and, in free moments, meeting with adult education groups "anywhere." In 1961-62 some 25,000 school children were attracted to McCarter. Last year there were 40,000 and it is anticipated that the upcoming season will "draw" upwards of 50,000 youngsters. And this fall, in recognition of the "McCarter impact", New Jersey's 503 junior and senior high schools, acting on the resolution of the State's Association of Secondary School Principals, have all designated Cultural Coordinators who maintain liaison with McCarter.

Lithgow's dedication to "the theatre" dates back to his undergraduate years at Antioch College and the establishment of Antioch's first student summer theatre. Three years at the Putney School in Vermont, war production work with Eastman Kodak, and graduate study at Cornell preceded his return to the Antioch faculty in 1917. From Antioch, where he taught for a decade and in the space of six years actually produced all 37 of Shakespeare's plays, his influence spread to noteworthy summer festivals in Ohio and New England and to educational undertakings across the country.

For helping McCarter "play its own full and responsible part" as one of the basic benefits offered by an academic center, for grasping the educational significance of giving the upcoming generation a wide-ranging glimpse of the world's dramatic repertory; for constantly seeking to add new dimensions to "life in Princeton"; he is our nominee as

This Is PRINCETON

WHAT IS PRINCETON?

For a Negro. "This, to me, is incredible: that white people in Princeton haven't realized there is discrimination here."

Three young Princeton residents, all in their early 30's, all graduates of Princeton High School, all Negroes, sat together one afternoon this fall to talk about their experiences as Negroes in the town all of them call "home."

They are Mrs. Albert Carnegie, 31 Race Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Campbell, 105 Leigh Avenue. Mrs. Carnegie is forthright and vigorous, with flashing eyes and outspoken convictions. She is a housekeeper in a white home.

Mrs. Campbell is slim and intense, her husband solemn and thoughtful. He is a carrier clerk in the Princeton Post Office and has worked there for about eight years. Mrs. Campbell does not work.

These three agreed that no one particular problem faced by Princeton Negroes stands out above the rest: "Each one overlaps," Mrs. Campbell explained. "If housing were integrated, you wouldn't have to hand-pick certain children and transport them so that Johnson Park, Littlebrook and Riverside can have their token integration. We have good schools and our children are well-educated, but where will they go to find jobs? And where could they find a job that pays enough so they could afford to buy a house, even in an integrated neighborhood?"

Mr. Campbell said there had been few changes in the housing situation since he was a boy in Princeton. "The promoted, integrated area has 11 Negro families," he said. "It is out of reach for the average Negro, which leads me to wonder whether housing isn't an economic problem as well as a social one."

Pushed Out? "The Negro, in a sense, has been pushed out" said Mrs. Carnegie. "When Princeton banks require one-third down payment for a house, what Negro has $3-4,000? I remember that was the requirement back in '54, and we had to go elsewhere for decent housing. The Township had their great thing on multiple dwellings, and said there was no need! Then, they told people who were renting out basement apartments that they couldn't rent them any more. Well, if people were renting those apartments, then there WAS need for multiple housing."

Both Mrs. Carnegie and the Campbells recalled that Princeton was once, in a way, more integrated than it is now, with more Italian families living in the Birch-Leigh area, and Negro families living in "Jugtown" (Nassau Street near Harrison). Mrs. Carnegie remembers living on Spruce Street when she was a child.

Day-by-day discrimination? "Well, we accept it. It irks us, it makes us angry," Mr. Campbell said. "I have never been confronted with a problem in the Princeton restaurants we go to. But I've been in a Nassau Street store as the only customer, when two salesgirls would be talking together as though I weren't there, until I have to say, 'May I have service, please?' I have heard my friends come out of a store swearing with anger because they have to spend their money in a place that treats them this way."

Negro men are used to the white barber who turns them away because "I don't know how to cut Negro hair." Mrs. Campbell says that pairs of Princeton High School girls, one white, one Negro, have been visiting hair-dressers asking for a hair-trim. The Negro girl is usually told that the establishment only accepts customers who have been com-

LONGEST EARS? The pet white rabbit owned by Curtis Webster, 6½, would have won the longest ears contest at Miss Fine's School pet show Saturday—if it hadn't been for a couple of dachshunds, a basset hound and a burro. No matter what the box says, the rabbit's name is "Vanilla."

Next Tuesday's referendum on the new $2.5 million Princeton elementary school could be a ho-hum thing if the sparse attendance at Monday's PTA-sponsored public meeting on the proposed building is any indication . . . Of the fewer than three dozen people present at the session, most were board members, school administrators or teachers.

According to Board President Rohrer, the average school election brings out only 300 to 500 voters . . . But, despite the minuscule turnout for the meeting, Mr Rohrer is looking for "the biggest vote we can get" on Tuesday . . . "Let's see if we can pass the 1,000-vote mark," he urges.

While there is supposedly no cause-and-effect relationship between rapid variations in air temperature and head colds, there must be a high correlation. Sniffles seem to be epidemic in Princeton, and last weeks weather most assuredly ran to extremes. A low of 34° on Saturday night was quickly offset by a high of 79° on Sunday . . .

Among those lined in Borough Court on Monday was Frederick Schurz, Canal Road, inventor and owner of the "people catcher," a device which extended about two feet in front of the chassis of his car and which looked something like the "cow catcher" on the front of old locomotives . . . Since 1955, Mr Schurz has been driving his 1948 Austin with the "people catcher" fastened to the front bumper.

Up until this June State motor vehicle inspectors tolerated the unique appendage on Mr. Schurz's car . . . Then they rejected it as a highway hazard. The result: a $15 fine for Mr Schurz for driving without an inspection sticker.

Do you favor the sale of wheat to Russia? Your fellow Princetonians speak out on the subject in Question of the Week (page 21) . . . Incidentally, if the Dodgers' four-game sweep of the World Series surprised you, it was just about what Charles Greene of Rocky Hill expected . . . in last week's Question, he picked them to polish off the Yanks in five.

Politics, biracial issues and the upcoming school bond referendum are among the topics discussed in Mailbox (page 23) . . . the Pirandello play and the Masselos concert which opened the theatre and music seasons in McCarter during the past week are reviewed on pages 5 and 8 . . . the current exhibition at the Present Day Club heads the list of shows reported in Art in Princeton (page 18).

Fine defensive play by Princeton University and Princeton High School contributed largely to their football victories last weekend, as detailed analysis by TOWN TOPICS' Sports Department shows . . . golf, bowling, a horse show and a major regatta on Lake Carnegie are among the other events covered in pages 28-31.

The first of two articles in the traditional "Why I Plan to Vote" series on Borough candidates appears this week on page 19 . . . championing the Republican cause is John L. Hammer Jr., a Merck & Co executive whose home is at 101 Library Place . . . Prof. Willard Thorp, long-time member of the University's Department of English, tells why Borough Hall would benefit from a Democratic victory at the polls.

Plans for marking the Borough's 150th anniversary are reported in Topics of the Town, as are: the start of a house-to-house canvas to obtain signatures pledging equal rights in housing; the visit next Tuesday of Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, South Vietnam's "first lady" who ranks somewhat lower in U.S esteem; discussion and action at this week's Township Committee and Borough Council meetings; the time and place for voting in Tuesday's school referendum; details of a program at the Playhouse, sponsored by the Association for Human Rights, at which Dr. Robert F. Goheen will be a speaker.

ing for, say, ten years. The white girl is always accepted. "But some Negro girls are getting their haircut in white establishments," Mrs Campbell added.

The Importance of Youth. Young people and education are of prime concern to these three. Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie moved back into Princeton because, as Mrs. Carnegie says, "I desperately wanted my children to have this Princeton education. You know, now that Negroes are being educated, you can no longer say, 'You are inferior' because the Negro knows it isn't true!"

Mrs Campbell would like to see Princeton pay more attention to the middle achiever in school. "It's good for Negro children to be exposed to these faculty children who have such cultural enrichment, but Princeton should wake up and be aware that all students are not Ivy League. Princeton High is not equipped to give the vocational education so many young people, Negro and white, need."

In their discussions of housing, education and daily discrimination, the Campbells and Mrs. Carnegie spoke of Bruce Wright, the New York attorney who recently addressed a PAHR audience about his life as a Negro in Princeton 35 years ago.

It was the same for them, they recalled. Negroes clustered together on the right hand side of the Garden Theatre for a Saturday matinee with white boys and girls in the center or on the left; suddenly wondering why there were no white pupils at Witherspoon School; proudly refusing to go to Washington with the Princeton High seniors because it meant staying at the Negro "Y."

Jobs. In his talk, Mr. Wright had spoken of the University's role in discrimination, quoting the late Dean Radcliffe Heermance who had turned him away saying he wouldn't be happy at Princeton because "there are too many southern boys." Today, the University, in its search for diversity, seeks out qualified Negro students, and now has about 10 in the undergraduate body.

It is in another role, that of employer, that the University comes under fire. Mr. Campbell says he does not know of any Negro men in University jobs above the unskilled level. Mrs. Campbell suggested that the University could become a leader by refusing to do business with companies that discriminate, as well as by hiring qualified Negroes on its own.

Other jobs in Princeton? Mrs. Carnegie, a top-flight graduate from the commercial course at Princeton High, is a housekeeper. Mrs. Campbell, chic, personable and trained in retail sales, applied to a Princeton dress shop and was told she could work in stock. Mr. Campbell reminds Princetonians that they have never seen a Negro waiting on customers at a post office window.

What's the answer? One thing it is NOT, for these three, is the black racism of Malcolm X and the Black Muslims. Malcolm X's organization has been working the Princeton area hard, sending men up from Trenton about twice a week on door-to-door visits in the John-Witherspoon area, advertising lectures in Trenton and selling literature.

"It's too bad these energies aren't being used in other ways," is Mrs. Carnegie's comment. "I don't feel that their way of resolving it is on the right track any more than Governor Barnett's. I told one Black Muslim that I didn't feel inferior to anybody, and I didn't believe anybody was inferior to me.

"Where white people are concerned, I'd rather be told 'I hate you because you're Negro' than, 'Well, I haven't anything against you personally, but you know how people are.' I have no use for this at all. If they're for me, I like to see them stand up for their convictions and say so."

Mr. Wright, in his address, said he was full of "healthy astonishment" every time he returned to Princeton, and he told the PAHR audience that such a gathering of Negroes and whites would have been inconceivable in his youth.

"If white people would only look at us as individuals," says Mr. Campbell, "not as generalizations. This is what Negroes are all looking for, just the freedom to move about as people."

A BIKE IN THE ROADWAY: Parents of Johnson Park School children, anxious about safety, contend that Rosedale Road's 45 m.p.h. speed limit is too high, and that a car traveling at that speed may not be able to stop in time when a school guard lifts his hand. "What would happen if a child fell off his bike?" they ask. Here, at the Edgerstoune Path crossing, Albert Procaccino, guard, is confronted with a fallen bike, this one safely out of the path of a moving car. At this Edgerstoune crossing, cars headed into Princeton come down a blind curve. (Staff Photo)

NEVER UNDERESTIMATE?

Rosedale Gets Blinkers. Was it the picketing mothers? Was it the final, if partial, triumph of about five years of prodding?

Perhaps no one will ever really know, but whatever the immediate cause, Rosedale Road is going to have two blinkers at Johnson Park School. Not a reduction of the speed limit, not yet, but at least the blinkers.

The Mercer County Board of Chosen Freeholders told the Township on Tuesday that flashing blinkers would operate during school hours with a "35 m.p.h." sign on one blinker and "School" on the other.

Last Wednesday, a group of about 30 mothers lined up along Rosedale Road in picket formation to underscore, for the benefit of state highway officials, their contention that 45 m.p.h. is too high a speed limit for Rosedale Road. They would also like to see a 25 m.p.h. school zone limit. Rosedale is a county road, but ultimate decisions rest with the state.

During a one-week period, mothers took movies of traffic and children to prove that traffic regulations were being violated and that children were exposed to an unsafe situation.

At Thursday's meeting of the Township School Board, Mrs. Harold Mantell, 58 Fairway Drive, said the movies showed cars passing stopped school buses, and boys and girls falling from bicycles into the line of 45 m.p.h traffic.

This past summer, a walkway (not a sidewalk) was built on the north side of Rosedale east of the Stony Brook bridge, but Mr. Mantell, who worked with his wife on the movie-picketing project, told the board the walkway was too narrow for both bikes and walkers and that cyclists fell off the walk into Rosedale.

"When I talked to Township police about this," Mr. Mantell told the board "they said they were observing the situation."

Dr. John McKenna, Township superintendent of schools, told Mr. Mantell that the walkway was not unsafe because it was on an embankment and protected by a barrier of trees from the road itself.

"This whole thing is a thumbnail sketch of bureaucracy at its best," commented Dr. McKenna. Then he outlined to the board the most recent history of the problem. (It is actually much older: the Township has been trying to get county and state to act on Rosedale for five years).

July, 1962: Rosedale speed limit reduced from 50 to 45 m.p.h.

September, 1962. Township Traffic Safety recommends a blinker.

December, 1962: State Bureau of Traffic Safety says action will be forthcoming in four months.

February, 1963: Mercer County says the situation is wholly in the hands of state highway officials.

March, 1963: State officials inform the Township that they received an official request from the county for a blinker in January.

July, 1963: The state announces that it is not in favor of a blinker.

August, 1963: Another state official says the state will go along with a hand - operated blinker, to run during school hours only.

September, 1963. The Township Traffic Safety Committee, reviewing the situation, asks both state and county for a clear "yes" or "no" on the situation.

Dr. McKenna said he would like to see walks on both sides of Rosedale, and that Township Police Chief James Campbell would like a regular sidewalk, instead of a walkway. Dr. McKenna asked the board to petition Township Committee for a regular sidewalk.

Rosedale area parents believe that the main problem is speed. Township Committee, at its Monday night meeting, also faced the Rosedale problem and agreed after considering it that speed was indeed the demon.

"This mothers' demonstration was directed at exactly the proprr place: the state," commented John O. Green, Committeeman. "The real problem is speed: I doubt that a walk is the answer."

Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman suggested that the very presence of the "45 m.p.h." sign spurred motorists to a higher speed than they would normally take in negotiating the narrow, built-up portion of Rosedale Road just over the Borough-Township line.

Committee then concluded by making a "firm request" of the Traffic Safety Committee for recommendations.

DEFENSE AT THE BRIDGE

The Score: 21. Two months ago, the tally at the Kingston Bridge showed 17 accidents since January 1, and Township police and Mayor R. Kenneth Fairman decided the situation was so bad that they should write directly to State High-

RAW JUICES AND DIET FOR THE ARTHRITIC

Cheerfulness and optimism are milestones on the road to recovery; but carefully selected raw vegetable juices and the proper diet will keep one there. As is true with so many other diseases, in practically all cases of arthritis, there is a history of vitamin and mineral deficiency in the diet. It is to remedy this lack that fresh fruit and vegetable juices are included in the dietary treatment of this ailment. For FREE booklet on the "VALUE OF RAW JUICES," Address P. O. way Commissioner Dwight Palmer asking for action.

Since that decision, there have been four more accidents at the bridge, making a total of 21 so far this year. The letter, read Monday night at Township Committee meeting, asks that the bridge be straightened out — admittedly a costly enterprise — more and better lights installed, and approach signs re-aligned and enlarged.

The Township would also like to see the state put down a coarse-penetration surface on the bridge itself and on the 300 feet of road leading to the bridge to cut down on wet-weather skidding.

In the next two weeks, John O. Green for the Township and Alan W. Carrick for the Borough hope to report to Committee and Council on recreation for Princeton.

"We are substantially in agreement," Mr. Green reported, "on what kind of organization we need to develop and organize Community Park and how to share costs."

He said that statutes allowing the two communities to join in recreation enterprise were not wholly clear, but that a joint project could probably proceed without enabling legislation. Gordon Griffin, attorney for both Princetons, told Committee he had prepared such legislation and that it had already passed the State Assembly and was now in the Senate.

All or Piece? Mr. Green said that the Board of Recreation Commissioners had been asked to collect information on municipal swimming pools from New Jersey communities that had them, and make a report.

The question of piece-meal development, or all-out development of Community Park is still in the air, Mr. Green told Committee. The Township has, in its current budget, the money to develop the south side of Route 206 with playing fields and courts; however, recreation Commissioners would like to see the whole plan put into effect at the same time, and the money now budgeted allowed to lie fallow in capital improvements until the whole is ready to go.

On the Borough side, Mr. Green pointed out, the recreation committee is divided in its opinion, so that Borough Council has never received a firm word on all-out development.

That Teen Hangout. Then Mr. Green, began musing about the possibilities of another kind of recreation.

"We hear over and over again," he said, "that what teenagers really want is a hangout, and I'd like to see Township Committee back any reasonable program set up by a private group to provide a 'hangout.' I've seen one of these teen-age 'coffee houses,' where the kids can play their guitars and listen to jazz and buy soft drinks, and the one I saw was jammed, all the time. Of course, it might be hard to find enabling legislation for us to subsidize a place like that . . . ."

The Township attorney smiled but did not comment.

Public hearing will be held October 21 on an ordinance to ban parking on Valley Road from Ewing to Harrison so that left-right-straight-ahead lanes can be painted in as traffic decongestants.

Mrs. James L. Spencer of the Princeton Stony Brook Association in a letter to Committee expressed the thanks of her organization for The Great Road by-pass constructed for use while the county rebuilds the bridge near Mountain Avenue.

Committee appointed John Donal to the planning board as school board liaison replacing Willis Bussard, who has moved from Princeton. Because of the increasing load of school business, the school board has decided not to ask one of its own members to serve on the planning board. Mr. Donal, former member of the school board has served as liaison with the planners before.

Committee amended its road construction policy to require a developer to complete and pay for the base course, curbing, storm drains and utilities before the planning board can approve his final plot plan, and reaffirmed its policy of requiring a developer to put in all improvements at his own expense.

HOUSING UNITS? MAYBE

Council Will Consider Plan. The molasses-like contest between the Borough Housing Authority and Charles La Placa may be decided by what the boxing fraternity calls a technical knockout at Borough Council's next meeting on November 12. Or it may not be, in which case the federal funds which have been available to the authority since 1956 for public housing will undoubtedly be withdrawn.

The Housing Authority would like to buy (or condemn) Mr. La Placa's land on Harrison Street North for 50 units of low-cost housing for the elderly. But Mr. La Placa has other ideas. Council meeting on November 12 should determine the outcome.

This, and other bits of intelligence, were made public at the regular monthly meeting of Mayor and Borough Council on Tuesday night. Other items:

• A planning board recommendation that parking in front of residences be regulated was referred to Borough Attorney Gordon Griffin and Borough Engineer Arthur T. Bokaw for consideration.

Autumn is a season for many pleasures, among them freshly-baked pies of fruit that has ripened during the hot summer days. And soon the frost will be on the pumpkin . . . .

Cool, even chill, mornings are a part of the scene now, although the mid-day sun still takes the temperature pleasantly high. Another bright fall weekend is in store, the Man reports, with little or no rain in sight.

News Of The THEATRES

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT

Gala, for McCarter. The black tie and the sequin will star this Thursday night in the McCarter audience. Anne Murray, Donald Moffat and Ibsen will star on stage, as McCarter Theatre raises the curtain for its fourth consecutive season as a center for the performing arts.

"Hedda Gabler," the opening play of the fall-winter season, has been directed by McCarter's new executive director, Arthur Lithgow, and designed by McCarter's resident designer, William Roberts, who has been with the company since 1961.

Following the performance, an onstage reception will be given for members of the company, distinguished theatrical figures and members of the McCarter Advisory Council.

The theme for this season is "The Distaff Side," and, in pursuit of it, McCarter has scheduled Eugene O'Neill's autobiographical play, "Long Day's Journey into Night," which will open on October 24, Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" and J. M. Synge's "The Playboy of the Western World."

For the O'Neill play, Mr. Lithgow will import the entire cast of five which played the work at the Williamstown Theatre in Massachusetts this past summer.

The actual production will be re-directed for McCarter, and will by no means be a "package," but Mr. Lithgow feels that, because of the exhausting nature of the roles and the "delicate sense of ensemble work essential to a finished production," the regular members of the repertory would have to spend an inordinate amount of time in rehearsal to achieve a first-rate production.

"It seems prudent, therefore," Mr. Lithgow has said, "to utilize this fine, experienced cast."

Several members of the "Long Day's" company will stay on to work with the regular McCarter company in subsequent productions scheduled for this season.

MIDNIGHT SPECIALS

Montoya, Scruggs & Flatt. This Friday at midnight, a nicely witching hour, Carlos Montoya will bring his flamenco guitar onto the McCarter stage for his first appearance in four years.

Considered the world's foremost flamenco guitarist by many who are in a position to know about such things, Montoya has recorded more albums and sold more of them than any other flamenco artist now appearing in public.

He started to play at the age of eight and by the time he was 14, he was playing in the "cafe cantantes," or groups hired by cafe owners to lure in the tourists. For three years, he served in the army in Spanish Morocco and gave informal concerts between skirmishes with the Moors.

Moving on to the next midnight special, McCarter has scheduled Scruggs and Flatt and the Foggy Mountain Boys for Saturday, October 19. It will be a country and bluegrass hootenanny, illumined by the banjo-picking of Earl Scruggs, who is to the hillbilly, five-string banjo what Montoya is to the flamenco guitar. Or, to switch to the New York Times' equation, Scruggs is to the cornpone banjo as Paganini to the violin.

Tickets for all are on sale at the McCarter box-office.

HERE'S LOTTE

In "Brecht on Brecht," Lotte Lenya will head the cast when the off-Broadway production of "Brecht on Brecht" comes to McCarter. The S. Hurok presentation will be given one night only—next Wednesday, at 8.30 p.m. The Mercer County Association for Mental Health is sponsoring the production as a benefit for the Princeton Adult Psychotherapy Center.

Miss Lenya first came into fame as Jenny in the original Berlin production of "Threepenny Opera" in 1928, repeating her initial success in 1954 when the musical began its record New York revival.

In "Brecht on Brecht," she will sing many of the haunting songs written by her late husband, Kurt Weill, in collaboration with Brecht, including "Mack the Knife" and "September Song."

Tickets for "Brecht on Brecht" are available by mail through Mrs. Roland T. Ely, 144 Constitution Drive. Whatever tickets remain will go on sale at the McCarter box-office next Monday.

PLAYERS TO CAST FABLE

Tryouts Begin Sunday. Princeton Community Players have scheduled tryouts for their December play, Bertoldt Brecht's fable, "The Caucasian Chalk Circle." Auditions will be held in Murray Theatre from 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday and beginning at 10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

The director will be Edward

PRESENTING BRECHT: The late German playwright will be represented in an anthology of writing next Wednesday at McCarter. "Brecht on Brecht" will be in Princeton for a one-night stand.

Earle of the Trenton Studio of Performing Arts. Choreographer of the Lambertville Music Circus, Mr. Earle has previously directed several Players productions.

All those interested, whether or not members of the group, are invited to try out for the unusually large number of available parts. In accordance with tradition, members of the cast will be invited to join the Players. Dues are nominal and entitle members to several theatrical and social benefits.

(The following review was written by Mrs. Barbara Pollack, 30 Murray Place, who will, during the coming season, periodically cover theatrical events for TOWN TOPICS. Mrs. Pollack has written for several theatre, art and dance publications.)

McCARTER SEASON OPENS

On Auspicious Note. "Six Characters in Search of an Author" could teach some of our contemporary dramatists a theatrical trick or two. In the Circle-in-the-Square production of Luigi Pirandello's 40-year-old "comedy in the making," presented at the McCarter Theatre on Saturday, the six characters, abandoned by a playwright, interrupt a theatrical company in rehearsal and demand that their story be given dramatic reality.

Here is where the fun and the horror begin, for the concepts of "reality" and "illusion" sometimes merge and sometimes diverge and, by the end of the evening, with the struggle unresolved, the theatrical director comments: "A whole evening wasted on people who couldn't exist."

The six characters consist of a guilt-ridden father, a tortured mother, an illegitimate step-daughter and a small boy and girl, and the father's legitimate son. As they tell their stories, the director and his actors study them carefully, intent on converting their experience to theatrical reality. Thus, each deeply-felt emotion becomes the springboard to a theatrical pose and in these episodes comes a good deal of the fun that impelled Pirandello to call his play a comedy.

William Young, who plays the director of the acting company, urges on his actors while he cajoles and scolds the six characters whose story is to be re-created. He resents pettishly their desire to present the "truth," reminding them as if they were stupid children that the theatre is no place to present the truth—that is, not the whole truth.

Good Translation. Pirandello's play, which anticipated today's fashionable theater of the absurd movement, has been given a new, free-swinging idiomatic translation by Paul Avila Mayer. It is a good one, giving a liveliness and contemporary ring to the ageless and timeless values of tragedy, folly and comedy that always existed in the playscript. The performances were perceptive and the direction maintains enough comic values so that when the tension reaches a point of unbearability there is almost always a saving respite of laughter.

Performances of particular merit were turned in by Irene Baird as the illegitimate stepdaughter, who brought fury and passion to her portrayal. William Young as the director of the acting company combined pettishness with a growing insight into the complexities of staging life, as well as living it.

Patricia Fay, Thomas Hinsinger, Sheila Roy, Gerald Richards, Philip Thompson, David Hersey and Margery Shaw provided a proper blending of informality and theatricalism that made them convincing as members of the acting company.

Franklin Cover, as the father, Elizabeth Moore as the mother, and James Valentine, Philip Visco and Diana Visco

Ballet Group Forming. Auditions will be held on Sunday, November 3 at the McCarter Theatre for the new Princeton Regional Ballet. The company is being formed to provide stage experience for talented young dancers.

The judges, all nationally-known directors of civic ballet companies, include Virginia Williams of the Boston Civic Ballet, Phyllis Marmein of the Schenectady Civic Ballet, Alexi Itamov, Scranton Ballet Guild, and Fred Danieli, Garden State Ballet of Newark.

Two age groups will be judged: juniors (age 12-14) and seniors (age 15 and over). To ensure impartiality in judging, the judges were chosen from outside the Central New Jersey area. Each student will be identified by number, rather than by name, locality, or school.

Last January, the Princeton Ballet Society sponsored a performance of the American Ballet Theatre at McCarter. The proceeds were dedicated to the development and maintenance of the Princeton Regional Ballet.

Since then, a small committee has been working with Audree Estey, artistic director, to provide talented young dancers with an opportunity to gain professional experience and public recognition. Teachers whose students are selected for the Regional Ballet will be invited to participate on special committees.

Students may obtain applications forms through their teachers or by phoning the Princeton Ballet Society at WA 1-7758.

"LUTE SONG" IS OFFERED

By Miss Fine Dramatists. The annual Miss Fine's School Dramatic Club presentation will be held October 24-25 in the school auditorium. This year the club will offer "The Lute Song," a traditional Chinese drama first produced in 1404.

Directed by A. Monroe Wade, the play will reflect the school's emphasis on Oriental studies this year. Although the Dramatic Club will present a musical version of the play, it will be done in the classical Chinese tradition of simple settings and elaborate costumes. In 1946, it was made into a Broadway musical with Mary Martin and Yul Brynner in the leading roles.

The two leading roles will be played by Susan Moulton and Edward Nykwest, Princeton University sophomore. Other performers from Miss Fine's are Karen Fraser, Susan Sichel, Priscilla Mark, Elise Rosenhaupt, Susan Schildkraut, Marianne Hoffman, Marta Nussbaum, Karen Meyers and Stacy Valdes.

TO SHOW CLASSICS

In French Club Series. The Princeton University French Club will present the first programs of its 1963-64 series Tuesday. The first of two films will be shown at 8 in McCarter Theatre.

The presentation includes Jacques Cousteau's "Le Monde Du Silence," an underwater documentary, and "Une Partie De Campagne," Jean Renoir's 1937 prize-winning featurette. Tickets are priced at 50 cents for students, university personnel and their wives, and 75 cents for all others. Subscription tickets may be purchased at the door.

PRINCE AND PLAYHOUSE

Lawrence of Arabia (now showing) is an account, in settings of superb natural beauty, of an odd little Britisher who, in World War I, developed an adoptive affection for Arabia and fought hard and well to free it from the Turks. The film representation of his adventures is much more than just the Middle East horse-opera (or, in this case, camel-opera) it might have been — it is a faithful and absorbing chronicle of Lawrence's derring-do on the vast sandpile of the Arabian desert.

One trite, three-letter word probably best describes the movie: BIG. The desert (really the central character of the film) is magnificent and endless; the movie, a $10 million piece of change, is also magnificent in many respect and not quite endless — four hours including a 20-minute oasis stop for the audience.

The film-makers chartered a fleet of some 1,500 camels and horses, 5,000 spear-holders, and six stars: Alec Guiness, Anthony Quinn, Jack Hawkins, Jose Ferrer (Princeton '33), Claude Rains and Arthur Kennedy. Peter O'Toole plays Lawrence, an enigmatic bloke to everyone including himself, called everything from "one of the greatest beings alive in our time" by Winston Churchill to an erratic, masochistic, libidinous switch-hitter by detractors.

"Lawrence of Arabia" is no shoot-'em-up quickie filmed in Southern California. It's a vivid spectacle of a vividly spectacular place and time in history.

GARDEN

The L-Shaped Room (through Tuesday) is another low-budget bedtime story from England — which means, of course, a one-room set with a bed in it and a young couple (unmarried, natch) whose comradeship progresses well beyond the handshake stage. Funny yet sad, sentimental though sordid, sensitive but unpleasant are some of the noncontradictory attributes which are customarily and skillfully worked into the story line.

"L-Shaped" follows the pattern to a "T." An unloved, unwed mother-to-be from France goes shopping for an abortion in London, decides to keep her child, then nuzzles up to an unsuccessful writer who goes over the hill when he learns she is already pregnant by another. Ending: And they all lived gloomily ever after.

But, despite the "life on a compost heap" story, "L-Shaped" comes to the Garden well-recommended. Good writing, fine directing and excellent acting are three of its positive qualities. Obviously not for Disneyland fans.

A CABIN ON WHEELS

Travel! Comfort! If you read Steinbeck's "Travels with Charlie," you remember Rocinante, the ship-shape little house on wheels that took Steinbeck and his poodle over thousands of miles of roadway and adventure.

That particular cabin cruiser was made to Steinbeck's custom, of course, but we discovered last week-end that you can buy a house FOR wheels which is just as complete and compact as Rocinante was ON wheels.

It's the Del-Ray camper, available for inspection and purchase at Coleman's Camper Sales, North Main Street, Cranbury. The camper has been designed to fit snugly and precisely onto a three-quarter ton pickup truck, any make will do, so long as it has an eight-foot bed, split-rim wheels, heavy-duty springs (minimum 3,000 pounds) and a set of 715-inch six-ply tires.

Well, now that we've gotten all that out of the way, we can step inside for a visit. Enter, please, through a screen door in the rear of the camper, at the end of the axis that begins with the radiator up front. You find yourself in the trimmest, most delightful little galley, with a copper-toned porcelain sink precisely 12 by 18 inches with an overhead light. Hot and cold running water.

An 18-inch counter top, mica covered, comes next, followed by a copper-toned, three-burner gas stove with oven underneath and exhaust fan above. Behind you is a gas refrigerator, equipped with such felicities as separate butter compartment, egg tray and the like.

Then we find what Del-Rey euphemistically calls a "home comfort system". It's a closet about two and one-half feet square containing chemical toilet and shower (hot and cold). A drain in the floor and a screened vent in the ceiling — what more could you ask for?

Now for the living quarters, plumbing being out of the way. Across the little aisle from sink and stove is a mica-topped table and two five-inch foam benches, one on each side. A bank of windows stretches the length of the dining-room, so you can watch the Great Smokies go by while you have lunch. (The driver will get his snack later, we presume.) The center window, screened, is a set of glass louvres which opens by a turning handle.

CAMPER HEADED WEST: Clarence Wyckoff, security officer at Princeton Hospital, sits at the table in his Del-Ray Camper and reads to a couple of young ones about the excitements of the desert country. An itch for travel is built in to the Del-Ray, along with the dining table and benches, the trim little refrigerator (left-hand corner) and the lavatory (door, rear). Want to know more? See It's New to Us." (Staff Photo)

At night, you perform various folding operations and thereby convert the two foam benches to a 39-inch single bed.

In the front of the cabin, over the cab of the truck, is a full-size double bed. There's a flush light so you can read in bed, and little hunting-scene curtains at the windows that surround the bed on three sides. Anything cozier on a rainy night?

Speaking of lights, the camper can draw on the 12 volts from the truck itself, or, in a modern camp-site, can hitch onto any 110 volt system. There is also a charming gas light over the dining table.

You carry with you a pair of 25-pound butane containers and a 30-gallon tank of water. Various models, of course, very in equipment, depending on what you want to spend. You can even get a camper with three levels, giving you an extra double bed, or a stripped-down basic camper without toilet, shower, refrigerator, or safety glass.

The camper has three jacks mounted with it, so that you can remove the whole thing from the truck, leave it at the camp-site and drive off to see the town. Also, at night, you can lift the camper, easing the load on the springs.

Prices start at $1285 for the stripped-down, basic model, and go on up to about $2,500 for the model we described above.

We almost forgot — the camper has abundant storage space, including a linen closet, a clothes closet 55 inches tall, a row of cuboards above sink and stove and another above the table, undersink storage and a big rack to hold "Field and Stream," road maps of the Alcan highway and "Partisan Review."

ALTMANN'S SUITS

The Autumn Three-Piecer. Something brand new for Clayton's this season: a collection of knit three-piecers from Bernhart Altmann, who has supplied us with beloved cashmeres for so many years. One is a real, non-cranberry red, with a suede-front jacket and sleeveless overblouse ($59.95).

Another is a beautiful autumnal golden brown, with classic jacket stitched in big squares to look a bit like a hunting jacket. Leather buttons, of course, and a sleeveless shell underneath. A third has an accordion skirt and bulky knit sweater top done in mustard, teal and brown, buttoned with leather.

In the separate, but matching department, Clayton's has Altmann's pullover cashmere in sand (with a hint of green), and a matching ribbed cardigan. Also in spice.

The fall's most harmonious sweater is a fur-blend cashmere in sand, with intarsia leaves in deep juniper green and spice brown, just lightly in two sprays. A little collar turns over the neckline.

Tone-on-tone powder blue is like an October sky: the second deeper tone is a hair-line across pocket band and around neckline. The sweater is a slip-over, matched by a straight flannel skirt.

A minute pan collar tops off a short-cut cardigan, trim and demure, in jade, bright powder, spice brown. Skirts, of

MASSELOS IS HEARD

As Concert Series I Opens. The Princeton University concert season opened Monday night with a program of keyboard music by William Masselos at McCarter Theatre. Mr Masselos played the music of four composers whose musical output spans two and a quarter centuries. Three of the composers were presented before intermission, beginning with the 1930 Piano Variations of Aaron Copland.

Copland, now a senior member of the American fraternity of composers and one of the early members of the American fraternity of composers and one of the early members of the "Boulangerie," was given a clearly understood reading of his Variations which are now a third of a century old. Mr Masselos succeeded in unifying the dramatic excursions of the theme in such a way as to remove episodic listening. It was a pleasure to follow this ten minutes of piano sonority.

Domenico Scarlatti, the giant of Italian Late Baroque composers and author of much of the modern Italian keyboard style, was represented with four very brief sonatas all of which were presented in about six minutes. These "sounding" pieces with their rhythmic surprises and decisive themes beg for the instrument for which they were written, the harpsichord. The piano does not give the soft and loud tone-quality differences or the "figurated" chord.

While William Masselos played them flawlessly, the piano offers a mellowed clarity which seems to take the "edge off." In the last sonata the piano dynamic it was out of character with the style of the piece. Just because the Beethoven sonatas through Opus 26 bear the inscription, "Pour le clavecin ou pianoforte" is no reason to believe that Scarlatti's music also sounds on either instrument. Nor does Beethoven for that matter.

Robert Schumann's "Davidsbundlertanze," Opus 6 (Dances of the Davids-Society), comprising 18 character pieces involving the two symbolic figures Florestan and Eusebius, facets of the composer's own personality, was given a thorough performance by pianist Masselos. The audience was treated to both subtle and forthright playing in the dynamic dialogues, tender lyricisms and the Schumann penchant to ride his harmonies on rhythmic crests.

In this piece which is so long and so cut up, the pianist succeeded in giving an overall scheme, never allowing himself to be diverted from the orderliness of the program of the work. It would be so easy to clutter the performance with numerous fits and starts.

The Schumann legato was there when needed and the audience could not miss the expressive bass writing in the lyric passages. This is piano music of the German early Romantic poetic experience at its best.

After intermission, Franz Liszt's one Piano Sonata was heard. Wagner spoke of Liszt's playing of the C Minor Beethoven Sonata as a "creative effort". There are some who feel that the Liszt Sonata is in a direct line of succession to the C minor of Beethoven.

Certainly there are moments of great lyric beauty in this work as well as sure-fire surface effects and melodrama. The pianist approached the difficulties with respect and when needed achieved all of the big tone the piano had to offer.

This Sonata, dedicated to Robert Schumann and not unlike Schumann's lyric moments, gets a little slick in some of the metamorphoses. In true middle 19th century style, agitation is used as a cue for speed and more speed while the lyric moments are used for "after the storm." Philip Hale, in speaking of the Liszt concerto pianists, said that "he must be audacious in the bravura, must have large rhetorical phrases and a careless contempt for difficulty." While the Sonata must have some of this, also it must have much of the living room approach which certainly was achieved by Mr. Masselos.

The encores were involved with vignettes of Satie, explained with an informal charm by the pianist. This reviewer had a yen to hear the Satie pieces played on the harpsichord.

The evening's diet was well balanced, well presented and well taken. May the succeeding concerts be as engaging.

AMATEURS MOVE

To Meet in New Center. After several years as tenants of Miss Fine's School, the musical amateurs who sing once a month with the Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs will be given the use of the University's new Woolworth Center of Musical Studies. (Enter from Washington Road just north of College Road and Guyot Hall).

Opening session for the amateurs in the new hall will be Sunday at 5, when the group will gather to sing Verdi's Requiem. Sunday's performance will open the 29th season for the group.

Soloists will be Ellie Valentine, soprano; Rachel Armstrong, contralto, Woodward Waesche, bass and a tenor still to be chosen. J. Merrill Knapp and Mrs. Henry R. Lewis will share direction of the chorus during the coming year.

The society is open to anyone who likes to sing. The repertory consists of the great choral works, sung only for pleasure and never for performance. In subsequent months, the amateurs will sing Bach's Cantatas 104 and 150 (November 17); Bach's Christmas Oratorio (December 8); Purcell's "Dido and Aeneas" (January 12); Byrd's Mass for Four Voices and Motets by Lassus (February 16); Stravinsky's Symphony of Psalms (March 15); Brahms' Requiem (April 12) and Bach's B Minor Mass (May 10).

There is a membership fee to cover costs. Amateurs who are interested should call Mrs.

I'll Take Sable

The tweed and the fur of your choice will be combined in a magnificent winter coat if you visit Elise Goupil's shop, look over the coats on the rack, examine the swatches and then make your selection.

We found a warmly red tweed greatcoat topped by a soft black collar, and a very deep royal navy tweed buttoned to the neck with a bark-like button. Emerald tweed has a wide, round collar and a cut wide enough to go over a suit.

When you choose your own, of course, you may select the sleeve you like, the kind of pocket that suits you best and the neckline you find most flattering. You may prefer a dressier fabric to these jewel-tone tweeds. Miss Goupil has sketches as well as swatches, and the decision is yours.

It's New To Us

course, match most of these sweaters, and we select as an example a bright cranberry A-line with a one - inch wide stitched panel down the front. The weave is basket.

With the red and cranberry skirts and sweaters, Clayton's shows a collection of gingham shirts in various shades of red: good barn, reserved cranberry, sombre claret. Mixing and matching is as much fun as playing in the leaves.

When it gets cooler, wear stretch slacks, flannel slacks with laminated lining, or a real bargain of a wool wraparound, done in deep teal or cranberry checks for only $8.95.

After lunch, you can put on Kay Windsor's blue wool knit dress with leather string belt, or the two-piece black wool knit with overblouse. Prices from $18.95 to $30, with Mr. Melver's petites included.

VELOUR ON SOIE

Time to Dress! Fall isn't just autumn leaves — it's the brilliance of brocade and the chance to wear a satin ball gown after a day in tweeds. Elise Goupil tells us that more and more customers wait a full-length evening gown, and she is delighted to oblige, beginning with a model that has a stiff peau de soie black skirt and a bodice not quite high enough to be Empire, with red and pink roses and green leaves done in cut velvet against the black. The neckline is scooped, the sleeves cap.

Coupe de velour appears again on a short skirt, bell-shaped, in electric blue with deep blue roses, wide apart. Here again, peau de soie is the basic fabric. The cut of the dress is simplicity itself.

Fore theatre evenings, Miss Goupil has a floor-length ruby suit in silk velvet with a shell "blouse" (all one piece, actually) in palest pink chiffon. Comes in street length, too.

A chartreus silk chiffon blouse ties in front and goes under an olive silk velvet jacket given a faintly basketweave look by the interweaving of small, gold - colored silk threads.

Your favorite Goupil dress may be the floor-length silk chiffon with full, flowing back skirt, just the right two soft tucks in front, a rippling cowl neckline and cap sleeves. Color? Have it in raspberry or lime, black or chartreuse. Have it in a floral lame so dazzling you'll leave all your jewels at home. Have it in jade brocade or aquamarine — or one of each! It's a classic you will wear season after season, for dramatic effect or subdued elegance, depending entirely on the fabric you select.

Young party-goers of any age, will respond to a turquoise sculptured brocade with a waist-high jacket over a narrow-waisted dress. Bright red matelasse is two-piece, with a wide, gentle turtle collar on its shell (white or black, too)

We make our exit with a powder blue silk velvet (unforgettable on a blonde) with half-inch self band around short sleeves, U neck and hand-span waistline.

• A recommendation that parking meter rates be made uniform for both sides of Nassau Street was also put on ice until it could be decided whether the proposed regulation should apply to the entire central business district or just to Nassau Street.

• An announcement was made that the joint closing of property for the new public library site would be made with the Township this Friday at 12.30.

. . . IT'S NHU TO US

Vietnam Trouble - Maker Here. Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu, adder-tongued "first lady" of South Vietnam, will include Princeton in her 20-day junket around the United States in her peculiar effort "to woo American public opinion."

She will speak in Alexander Hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday as a guest of the Princeton Asian Affairs Committee, a subsidiary of the Whig-Cliosophic Society which recently displayed Mississippi Gov. Ross R. Barnett. A limited number of tickets for the general public will be available Monday from 1 to 6 at Whig Hall.

Despite Mrs. Nhu's endless vituperative comments about this country (she even refers to herself, incorrectly, as "controversial") and a sharp reproach by a high State Department official to all organizations giving her platform-room, her "snow job" here will apparently go on as scheduled. Her appearance in Alexander Hall adds further irony to that building's inscription from Lucretius: "There is no greater joy than to hold aloft the serene abodes well bulwarked by the learning of the wise."

Mrs. Nhu can hardly be considered to be controversial, because everything she allegedly thinks about the United States p.m. this Sunday at the Playhouse.

The Reverend Mr. Albert D. Tyson, pastor of the Mt. Pisgah African Methodist Episcopal Church, will share the platform with President Goheen. The speakers, who will be introduced by local author and lecturer Peter Putnam, will discuss the problem of racial discrimination in the Princeton area.

Proceeds from the benefit will aid the Elizabeth Taylor Byrd Fund. Established after Mrs. Byrd's death three years ago, the fund is designed to foster and aid the education of underprivileged Negro children of Princeton who show a high potential for learning, a goal to which Mrs. Byrd devoted much of her life.

"Gone Are The Days" is the screen adaption of the Broadway success of two years ago, "Purlie Victorious." Described as a satirical folk fantasy, the film humorously attacks segregation, bigotry and racial stereotypes.

Tickets for Sunday's benefit, at $2 each, will be available at most churches after services as well as at the Playhouse before the benefit.

is bad — despite her ability to turn on superficial charm when she thinks it will help her. "Irresponsible," "arrogant" and "viciously anti-American" are some of the terms applied to her.

She is said to have criticized American aid to Vietnam as grossly inadequate despite our reported $1.5 million per day expenditure there and the presence of 14,000 American troops. She is quoted as having called U. S. soldiers in Vietnam "little soldiers of fortune," a statement she now chooses to deny.

Mrs. Nhu also has been quoted as saying that the Buddist monks who have committed suicide in an attempt to call attention to South Vietnam's internal strife are "hooligans in saffron robes." She also aroused worldwide indignation when she was quoted as saying she would "clap her hands" over further "barbecues of bonzes" (Buddist monks).

The "other" Mrs. Nhu, and the one who will probably be in evidence in Alexander Hall Tuesday, is said to be superficially polite, gracious, charming. Charming in the way a cobra can be to a naive rabbit, as those who know her report.

before, will serve until the February elections.

• Construciton at Littlebrook is on schedule, maybe "a little bit ahead," according to Leonard Hymerling, board watchdog on construction. Following recent vandalism, the contractor will pay for a guard, Mr Hymerling said

• Perhaps young vandals in the Township should be put to work, as they seem to be in the Borough, suggested Richard Pearson, board chairman. "If kids deface school desks, we make them go down to the shop to refinish them," Superintendent John McKenna said

• Salvatore Di Donato has been appointed clerk-of-the-works for the current school construction.

• Samuel C. Simpson was awarded the bus contract to transport one way, Community Park School to Edgerstoune, for $1,053 for the school year. His bid was $800 lower than the next highest. Mr. Simpson has only one bus (in the Township's service already) and he was awarded the contract on the condition that he provide a substitute bus if his vehicle should break down

Mrs. Richard Schoch of the board pointed out hastily that the bus was not likely to break down because school buses are rigidly inspected twice a year, but just in case . . .

• Louis Cicchini, art teacher at Littlebrook, will serve as color consultant for the new Littlebrook - Riverside additions, working with the architect.

• Representatives of Princeton High School sending districts meet regularly in a continuing program of dovetailing, so that boys and girls from West Windsor, Hopewell or Princeton will arrive at the ninth grade door with approximately the same equipment. A. Robert Trudel reported on the latest meeting. The committee was started so that districts could exchange information, but Mr. Pearson and Mr. Trudel suggested that eventually the group might move ahead into making recommendations to school boards.

CAR, BUS COLLIDE

On Kingston Bridge. The Kingston Bridge was the site of another accident last week, when a car skidded on the rain-slick roadway into a bus. Neither of the drivers nor any of the six bus passengers, all Princeton residents, were injured

Owen K Jolly, 42, of Sportswood, told Township police that as he approached the narrow bridge he swerved to the right and applied his brakes in order to give the bus more room In doing so, however, his car skidded on the wet roadway into the bus' path. The driver of the Suburban Transit bus was Joseph L. Hunter, 28, of Somerset.

FOUR ARE FINED

In Borough Court. Four Princeton area residents were fined Monday by Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams Jr. Three pleaded not guilty to the charges against them.

In traffic court, Joseph P Lohrman, 17, 194 Washington Road, Rocky Hill was fined $10 for driving with inoperative tail lights. Frederic Schurtz, 53, RD 1, paid $15 on a late inspection violation.

For assaulting his wife, Elizabeth, who was the complainant, Peter A Fiumenero, 28, 111 Patton Avenue, was fined $50. Joseph M. Anderson, 20, Holder Hall, Princeton University, pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession of alcohol as a minor. He was fined $25.

OPENINGS AVAILABLE

At Nassau Nursery School. The Nassau Cooperative Nursery School still has a few openings for 3-year-old children.

Located on Quaker Road near Mercer, the school meets daily with separate classes for 3 and 4-year-olds The school is interracial and non-sectarian and offers scholarships. Those wishing registration information should call Mrs. Peter Mark at WA 4-0191.

School Vote Tuesday

Borough residents will vote on the proposed school bond issue Tuesday from 5 to 9 p.m. Districts one through five and district eight will vote in the Nassau Street School and six and seven will cast their ballots at the Witherspoon School.

If approved, the bonds would enable the Board of Education to replace the Nassau Street and Witherspoon Schools. The schools are considered by officials to be inadequate and substandard.

Mayor Patterson called the voting opportunity an "exciting" one "because it is an excitingly new school to be financed at so little additional cost to the taxpayer. I hope and urge every Borough voter who possibly can will exercise his voting privilege," he said, "and that the Borough Board of Education's plan will receive overwhelming approval."

Every now and then a little gem turns up—nicely designed—well-constructed—easy to finish.

"GHETTO" BREAK SEEN

By Mayoralty Candidate. "Progress toward the abolition of Princeton's ghetto is at last in sight," said Minot C. Morgan Jr. this week in commenting on recent developments in the Princeton housing situation. The Democrat candidate for Borough mayor expressed "cautious relief" at the planning board's approval of the revised proposal for housing for the elderly on Harrison Street North.

Mr. Morgan also enthusiastically endorsed the forthcoming canvass for a pledge of non-discrimination by homeowners. "Both projects, if carried forward," he said, "will go far towards removing an intolerable burden from the community conscience.

He added that a primary concern of a human rights commission, which he has previously pledged to establish if he is elected, will be the elimination of all forms of discrimination in housing. Mr. Morgan says that one of the first steps will be to enlist the support of Princeton realtors.

The Democratic candidate stated that the canvass will be especially valuable because "every Princetonian will have to stand up and be counted — not publicly — but in front of his own mirror every morning, as to whether he will put the brotherhood of man into practice on his block."

On the subject of the proposed housing for the elderly, Mr. Morgan said: "I was shocked to hear Mayor Patterson deny that there was any racial question at issue. Any one who attended any of the many public hearings on the subject last spring could feel racial intolerance crackling in the air like August lightning. Thanks to Barnett and Birmingham, the leaders of the oppsition to the project seem to have lost some of their troops."

CANDIDATES TO SPEAK

At Women Voters Meeting. The Leagues of Women Voters of Princeton and Hopewell will sponsor a candidates meeting Wednesday at 8:15 in the Community Park School. Candidates for assemblymen from Mercer County will address the meeting on fair housing and employment.

Also, candidates for freeholder will discuss their views of various area problems. The four contestants will be called upon to answer the following question: "What do you consider the two most pressing problems facing Mercer County and how do you suggest solving them?"

Mrs. Stephen Kidd is responsible for coordinating voter service activities such as this one for the Princeton League. She is assisted by Mrs. Sigurd Waaben, chairman of the meeting, Mrs. Peter Maruhnic and Mrs. William Miller. The timekeeper will be Mrs. John Thompson.

Hostesses will be Mrs. Bertha H. Brandon, Mrs. John John Benoit and Mrs. Sheldon Judson from Princeton, and Mrs. Bobb Slattery, Mrs. B. J. Lechner and Mrs. Martin Katz from Hopewell. Princeton and West Windsor residents may meet area candidates Wednesday and Thursday, October 23 and 24, respectively.

DIVISION FOR "THREE"?

May Come in Future. Election district three in the Borough has already met county requirements for division into two districts, according to committeemen in the district.

To qualify for division, a district must produce at least 600 voters, not 900 as stated in last week's TOWN TOPICS, in two consecutive elections, and the district has met the require-

RUMMAGE TIME AGAIN

Hospital Sale Coming. Householders who have been saving outgrown shoes, pottery statues of Lincoln and record players that almost work, will have their day of deliverance Monday when the Hospital Aid Committee's fall rummage sale begins at the Harrison Street Firehouse.

Pick-ups for all these savings can be arranged by calling Mrs. O. Kline Fulmer, WA 4-3248, or Mrs. Francis Bushnell, FLanders 9-5273. Different kinds of articles are sold on different days during the week. For detailed information, see display ad in this week's TOWN TOPICS (page 22).

SIGNATURES SOUGHT

For Open Housing Statement. Over 300 volunteers will start a door-to-door canvass Monday night asking Princeton residents to sign a statement supporting equal opportunity in housing.

The canvass is being sponsored by the Princeton Housing Group, the public affairs committee of the YWCA, the Princeton Pastors' Association, and the Princeton Association for Human Rights. Mrs. Edward Nelson is chairman.

The Princeton Housing Group has already obtained signatures from more than 1,200 families through contacts with churches and other institutions. The largest group of signatures — more than 350 — has come from faculty and administrative personnel at the university.

Princeton Theological Seminary, with a faculty of 45, has turned in 34 faculty signatures. Twenty of Princeton's 22 churches have presented the pledge to their congregations.

Statements signed as a result of the canvass will be placed with the others in the public affairs committee office at the YWCA. A map of Princeton in this office shows that pledges have been signed in every area of Borough and Township.

the purpose of the canvass is to establish "a positive community position on a moral and ethical issue and to confront individual conscience with an opportunity for forthright decision."

In addition, the sponsoring groups hope to provide real estate brokers with concrete evidence that public opinion in Princeton is receptive to open housing and to sustain home-owners who are willing to offer their properties on the open market if they know their neighbors support them.

NO, NEVER!

Well, Hardly Ever. "Can Parents and Teen-agers Agree?" is the topic for next Wednesday when parents and experts meet at 1:15 p.m. at Valley Road School. Luncheon will be served before the meeting.

Discussion leaders will be Mrs. Mary Ballard, science teacher at Valley Road; Mrs. John Criscitiello, social worker; Eugene Doherty, Valley Road English teacher; Walter Emanns, juvenile officer for Princeton Township police; Mrs. Martha Montgomery, Township school psychologist and Mrs. L. E. Purvis and Mrs. Robert Sinkler, parents. Mrs. John Casserly will moderate.

Topics to be covered are social life, parental directives, parent supervision, sex education, minor infractions of the law and such matters as standards of dress, allowances and bedtime hours.

AUTUMN HIKE PLANNED

For This Sunday. Migrating hawks and the fire and color of an autumn woodland will be on view this Sunday when the Trenton Naturalist Club hikes along the Appalachian Trail near Blairstown, N.J. Edwin D. Bloor Jr. of Lawrenceville will be the leader.

Cars will meet at the diner on the south side of Route 94 on the western edge of Blairstown at 8:30 a.m. Hikers are urged to bring rugged footwear, warm clothing and lunch. Additional information may be obtained from Mrs. Curtis Hitchcock, TW 6-0328.

WELLS GO DRY

In Pennington. About 50 residents of Pennington and Hopewell Township near Pennington, were scheduled to appear in Hopewell Township Hall Tuesday night to find out what can be done about their dry wells.

One estimate lists 22 dry wells along Dublin Road, West Delaware, Morningside and properties west of Route 69. More than 11 wells went dry during the summer, according to the same estimate.

Three years ago, when a pump was installed in Pennington, five wells went dry within a short time. Many residents believe that overbuilding is one reason wells have been sucked dry, and questions of planning and zoning were on the informal agenda of those who planned to attend Tuesday's meeting.

PRESENT DAY CLUB SHOW

French Artist Exhibits. The Present Day Club's program of art exhibitions, this year under the supervision of Mrs. Ledlie H. Laughlin, starts with an October exhibit of work by the French artist Madame Drouet-Reveilland, who is now visiting in Princeton at the home of her neice, Mrs. Miraslav Kriz. Madame Drouet-Reveilland is a committee member of the French Academy of Fine Arts "Outremer" and, as such, has traveled and painted in Europe, Africa and the Far East.

Many of her major works have been commissioned by the French government for public buildings in France and North Africa, and several of her paintings have been acquired by museums in both countries. Her largest mural, "The Soul of Morocco," was unfortunately destroyed in Casablanca during the war, but the feeling for composition and sensitivity to color which made this fresco so fine an achievement can be seen in some of the small pictures shown here in Princeton.

Influenced by the French Impressionists, she shows strongest attraction to the technique of the Post-Impressionist Gauguin. Although her color is not as violent, she arranges her figures in strong composition, often with an exotic and decorative backdrop.

"Une Petite Barber," a young girl seated in a garden full of the strange plants and fruits of Cameroon, is a painting direct and colorful, reminiscent of Gauguin's style.

"Dessins Rehausses." Among Madame Drouet - Reveilland's other paintings, watercolors and drawings, the most interesting to us are the drawings called "dessins rehausses." The technique of these sketches is "something of my own," she says, and the result is surely individual and charming.

Not gouache or watercolor, it is drawing, heightened in color, over a ground of dried pigment and glue, a method which enables her to achieve nice quality and brilliance. These "dessins" are the vivid pictures which one remembers best for she has caught the essence of various peoples in their indigenous surroundings.

Sympathetic to the spirit and individuality of these people she has grown to know, she has set out to represent faithfully their unique character. "Moroccan Market" is intense with the arid light of the African desert and peopled with strong native figures in a combination of cobalt blues and hot oranges, highlighted with pure white.

"Street in Japan," however, with its delicate details has a paper fragility. The "Junks and Sampans" of Shanghai, afloat on yellow water in the opaque light of the Orient, is a contrast to the softer, more luminous scenes of Provence or Le Midi.

Among the reviews Madame Drouet-Reveilland has received during her exhibitions in Paris, the words "sincerity," "sensitivity" and "understanding" repeat themselves. As she has traveled about the world, she has worked vigorously and directly with these qualities outstanding.

The exhibition room of the Present Day Club is open regularly to members and to the public at specific times. Because of club activities, it is advisable to telephone Miss Carnegie at WA 4-1014 to check on free hours.

Of Interest Out of Town. Through October 31, there will be an exhibition of drawings and watercolors by Linda Tunnell in the Guild of Creative Art at 600 Broad Street in Shrewsbury, N.J. The gallery will be open daily from 12 noon to 5 p.m., closed on Monday.

Miss Tunnell, a resident of Princeton, studied at the University of Colorado, the Tyler School of Fine Arts and received her M.A. in Fine Arts from Temple University. She has shown her work in New York at The Carus Gallery, The American Gallery, The Preston Gallery and The Little Drawing Shop; in Southampton at the Morris Gallery and The Parrish Art Museum; in St. Croix at Grapetree Bay and in Princeton at Gallery 100.

The Scofield Gallery at 140 West State Street in Doylestown, Pa., is showing paintings by Harry Leith-Ross, one of the country's finest painters of the traditional school, and a New Hope artist well-known to Princeton. His landscapes of Bucks County and Holland will be on view through November 2. The gallery will be open every day with the exception of Sunday and Monday.

Why I Plan to Vote

Republican

By John L. Hammer, Jr.

Having lived in several other cities, I know from experience that Princeton Borough is most fortunate in having Henry Patterson as Mayor. It is remarkable to find a person of his sincerity, forthrightness and ability who is willing to serve in elective municipal office.

He has performed his duties well in the past two years, and now we have the happy opportunity to put him back in the Mayor's chair for another term. We should take advantage of our good luck and vote for him once again.

It has always been my belief that the chief executive office of any political subdivision should be at the same time a politician and a business man. This is a rare combination and one with which we are rarely blessed.

It takes the politician to keep various factions at peace and working with each other. It takes a business man to objectively administer the multiple affairs of the community. One ability without the other is like trying to paper a wall with one hand tied behind your back.

Henry Patterson has had long and successful experience in business, and he has been taking part in practical politics for some years. He has a genuine interest in people and in their welfare. In addition, he has brought to the Mayor's office a youthful energy and a zeal for the job that has resulted in his spending many extra hours in the performance of his duties.

His sincere interest in and love for Princeton is manifest in his efforts to keep our beautiful borough unspoiled yet modern and up-to-date. He has a deep understanding of the relationship between our municipality and the University.

His every action since taking office has shown his desire to constantly improve Princeton without relinquishing control of our affairs to outsiders who have no regard for Princeton's integrity and traditions.

It would be a shame if the citizens of Princeton do not return him to office again for we can certainly use much more of his excellent administration.

His running mates for Borough Councilmen, Dr. Ellwood W. Godfrey and Arthur J. Horton are also particularly well qualified individuals. Dr. Godfrey who is Chief of the Radiology Department of Princeton Hospital has served served ably as a Borough Councilman since 1961.

A member of the Public Safety Committee and the Chairman of the Finance Committee for the past two years, he has shown his outstanding ability as an organizer and administrator. His experience is invaluable.

As the Executive Director of the Annual Giving Office of Princeton University and director of the Annual Giving Office of Princeton University and director of the Alumni Council, Jerry Horton has also shown his substantial talents as administrator. A graduate of Princeton and a member of the University Chapel Council, he is a person dedicated to the welfare of Princeton.

Democratic

By Willard Thorp

I intend to vote Democratic in the coming Borough election because the 1963 Platform of the Princeton Democratic Party is the best statement of the problems and possibilities Princeton faces that I have ever seen and because I believe the candidates who helped write this Platform will try to carry it out in every one of its important particulars.

Usually there is no need for a voter in a local election to put a party label on himself. National issues which divide our two parties are seldom involved. And we are not now concerned about Senator Goldwater's conservatism or Governor Rockefeller's divorce or the plethora of political Kennedys. It happens, however, that here and now, this fall, one party, the Democratic Party, has declared itself, through its Platform and its candidates for the kind of Princeton we would all wish to see.

In my thinking I keep coming back to the first two declarations in the Preamble to this Platform. There the statement is made — and no one can deny this plank—" that Princeton is a unique community, offering its residents the flavor of the small town, the amenities of a progressive suburb, and the excitement of a great and historic center of learning."

The second declaration is the inevitable sequel to the first: "We believe it is the duty of each generation of Princetonians to preserve this uniqueness for future generations." The items in the Platform tell how the candidates, with the help of all of us, propose to work to preserve the uniqueness of Princeton: in Planning, Housing, Recreation; in subduing the Automobile; in "Town and Gown" Relations, Consolidation and Public Services, and Civil Rights.

The forthrightness of these sections of the platform is amazing. There is no pussyfooting, no hedging.

What is the uniqueness of Princeton? When I came here to live in 1924, first as a graduate student and then as a teacher in the University, Princeton was a quiet, leisurely village, with a small but distinguished university as its only major employer. We could walk to work (except for the few commuters of those days) and walk back home to eat at noontime.

Country, real country was only a few minutes from Nassau Street. But this village remoteness was not, as it is not now, the unique thing about Princeton.

What made Princeton unique was the fact that one could live this pleasant village life only 50 miles, east and west, from two metropolitan centers. All that great cities can offer was in our backyard.

The men who would soon attract here the other institutions of higher learning and the research centers so important to our national economy were planning this part of the future Princeton, now the present Princeton. Their vision was great.

Our failure as citizens is that we and our elected officials have not worked hard enough to accommodate what the new Princeton brought to the kind of life enjoyed in the old Princeton, a kind of life which newcomers to Princeton expect to enjoy, as a matter of course. In many instances this is why they have moved here.

We cannot go back, nor do we want to. But, as this Democratic Platform shows, we do not have to become a bedtime New York or Philadelphia suburb where only the wealthy can afford to live, forcing the less well-off who provide vital services in the community to depart each night to whatever low-cost sub-suburb of Princeton can offer them housing.

Our Negro citizens don't have to agree to the denial of their inalienable rights to housing and employment and public accomodation.

Nassau Street, one of the most famous streets in America, does not have to become a hodge-podge of stores over

PLACE 150 CANDLES

On Princeton Birthday Cake. Princeton will celebrate its 150th birthday this year with a 12-day "party" beginning November 12.

The "ballroom" (auditorium) at Borough Hall will be the setting for a collection of photographs showing the changing face of the community. The exhibition will describe the evolution of Princeton from its incorporation in 1813 and will include that phase of the community's history when it was the colonial capital.

The exhibition is being sponsored by the Princeton Preservation Committee, organized last spring by Mrs. Robert Greiff and Mrs. Felton L. Gibbons, in affiliation with the community historical society and with the cooperation of Mayor Patterson and the Borough. Contributions to the display were gathered from the Princeton University archives, area residents and Princeton Theological Seminary.

The state has also lent material to enhance the exhibit. Architectural enthusiasts should find the display particularly significant, but it is expected that the exhibit will be of general interest to all Princeton area residents.

TO DISCUSS SCHOOLS

At Township PTA Meeting. The Riverside School PTA will hold an informal discussion at its meeting Tuesday at 8 in the all-purpose room of the school.

A panel made up of members of the board of education and school officials will be present to answer any questions pertaining to the Township school system. Panel members will be Dr. John McKenna, superintendent of schools, Mrs. Arthur Packard, principal of Riverside, Mrs. George Grace, Mrs. Robert Trudel and Mrs. Richard Schoch. Parents have been requested to send in questions ahead of time, but they will be answered from the floor.

PTA TO HAVE SALE

In Hopewell Township. The Hopewell Township PTA will hold a used clothing sale Friday, October 25, from 1 to 6 in the Pennington Grammar School auditorium.

The PTA will retain a percentage of the sale price on all articles with the balance given to the owner. Residents are advised to print their names, addresses, sizes, and purchase prices on tags for all articles.

Clothing will be taken at the auditorium from 3 to 6 on Thursday, October 24. Those wishing to sell articles are encouraged to bring good clothing.

FILMS AVAILABLE

At Public Library. Motion pictures from the New Jersey Library Film Circuit for October have arrived at the Public Library and are available to groups or individuals owning sound projectors.

The films include "Flight of Friendship 7," the account of Col. John Glenn's space flight, and "Submerged Glory," which describes the problems of saving Egypt's ancient monuments from Aswan Dam backwaters. Also available are Canadian travel films depicting Calgary at rodeo time, Prince Edward Island and fishing in the northwest.

TO PRESENT PLANS

At Business Club Meeting. The Princeton Business and Professional Women's Club will hold its first meeting of the fall Monday at 7:30 at Tenacre Foundation on the Great Road.

Miss Kathryn Helm, assistant to the director of Tenacre, will act as hostess. Mrs. Estelle Seymour, first vice-president of the club, will preside at the business meeting and will be the featured speaker. She will discuss her trip to Colombia, South America and show slides.

Plans for the coming year will be presented at the meeting. In the months ahead, speakers who will address the club include Paul M. Van Wegen of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association; William Flemer III of Princeton Nurseries; Joseph Brown, Princeton sculptor; and Warren Pope, general manager of McGraw-Hill Publishing Company.

EXPLORER TO SPEAK

Before Hopewell Club. James Fowler, a naturalist-explorer, will deliver a lecture and demonstration Monday.

its two-mile length. We don't have to submit to the tyranny of the space-hogging automobile.

As I read it, the Democratic Platform envisions the Princeton we should like to have and still can have. The Democratic candidates know how to go to work to bring this transformed Princeton into being.

Can the Opposition match the mayoral experience and devotion to Princeton's interests of Minot Morgan, the human sympathy of Paul Baldeagle, the administrative wisdom of Joseph Strayer, the vigor of that completely native son Nicholas Bartolino, the political sagacity of Mrs. Wilson Coan? Is they can, they should hurry up and say so. Has anyone heard a whisper out of our present care-taker all-Republican Council? Are they prepared to get moving to cure those ills of our community life which are still curable?

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think the United States should sell its surplus wheat to Russia?

Where asked: Around town.

John Jones, 1901 Hall, University senior: I think it is a question of what alternatives we have. What nations need our wheat the most? If it is a question of selling wheat to nations under Soviet influence or selling it to a nation that shows prospects of repelling Communism, then I think the choice should be the latter. If you are asking, do I think it is immoral to sell wheat to Russia, my answer would be no.

Hirshal Grieves, 117 Washington Road, cabinetmaker: Yes, I think we should sell it to them. I, personally, have nothing against the Russian people themselves who really need it, not the heads of government. From what little I've read about the annual surpluses of our country, I know we certainly can afford to sell a large amount of wheat to Russia. If anything, it's going to do more good than harm. It may strengthen our diplomatic relations. At least, it shows we're willing to help. Everybody knows Castro is going to have his bread no matter what.

Gus Granitzki, Skillman, president, Country Cabinet Shop: Yes, I do. I can't see where it would hurt us. It's not anything like war materiel, it's food. And if we don't, Canada will and she is supposed to be one of our allies. Heaven knows we've got enough of it stored in this country. It's costing us money just to store it. The less we store the more money we save.

Charles Wilkes, 411-C Butler Avenue, graduate student, chemistry: Yes, I think we should. First of all I would like to clarify that be saying we should sell wheat that isn't subsidized. If we're selling subsidized wheat, we're helping the farmer; if not, we're using more of our own tax dollars. I think if the Russians were willing to pay a free market price, fine. My idea on this whole thing is that the government is buoying up the price of wheat so that the farmer can make a decent profit. Which leads me to say we should cut out all forms of subsidies and controls. To answer your question: No, I'm not opposed to it. This business of helping communism and all that, I can't see. I think it is good business to sell to them. We have to make sacrifices on some things.

Mrs. Frank Birch, 28 Quaker Road, secretary to the Borough Superintendent of Schools: No, I don't. I don't see why we should discriminate between Red China and Cuba — we don't sell to them. After all, they are in the same catagory as Russia, in my mind.

Jerry Brown, 222-C Marshall Street, graduate student, religion: Yes, I do. We've got too much wheat for one thing. For another, I think there is something basically immoral about one country having so much while people in another go hungry. And in the last place it is good policy because it creates ties of interdependence and I think this is one of the best checks against war. I'd like to see us increase our trade with Russia even more.

Mrs. Anthony J. Meyer, 22 Carnegie Drive, housewife: I frankly don't think we are accomplishing anything by letting people starve, regardless of what their political beliefs may be. It's un-Christian and in human to let other people starve while our huge surpluses just sit there and rot.

Mrs. Edgar Gemmell, Province Line Road, free-lance writer: No, I'm not opposed to it. Generally speaking, I believe that trade is one of the very useful weapons in easing world tensions. Seems to me, it is the only way to break down barriers peacefully.

Samuel D. Atkins, 78 Alexander Street, Princeton University faculty member: I do. Anything that alleviates tension between the two superpowers, seems to me, would br desirable, even though it may be only a temporary thing. Also, I would say it is morally desirable. It would be a symbol of proper action in the world today and perhaps we ought to act the way we wish ourselves to be, as figurrd in the minds of men.

Miss Judy Vandegrift, Old Road, Rocky Hill, secretary: Well, why not? We've tried everything else in order to get along with them. I don't see where it would hurt. It would just give them something else to holler about if we said no. I think it would give a propaganda advantage to countries like Canada and Australia that are willing to sell their wheat.

Mrs. Alfred H. Sommer, 134 Moore Street, housewife: Yes, I do. I feel it's brtter than being stored and eventually destroyed in this country. The government keeps adding to our suplus every year to the extent that it can't possibly handle it all. There are people going hungry in the world; I think it's ridiculous. And it makes money for the United States.

Mrs. Clarice Boice, Princeton-Lawrenceville Road, housewife: No, I don't. I think some of the other countries need it more than Russia. I don't mean that Russia doesn't nerd it, but I don't think we should give it to them, myself. We won't get any thanks for it; we won't gain anything by it. They're still our enemy, you might say. I'd rather see it sent to some other country by far.

Charles Rosrn, Springfield, partner in Volkswagen dealership soon to open on Route 206: Yes, I think we should. Actually, I don't think Russia needs the wheat. I think they could easily obtain it from other sources if they so desired. The mere selling of our wheat would be a good-will gesture. It would mean more to the Russian government. I think it would help unite the two countries.

Roy Fuller, 173 Graduate College, graduate student, mathematics: Yes. It's not doing us much good right now. We might as well get some dough out of it. I feel it wouldn't hurt anything to sell. We're giving it more to the people of Russia than to its government. We might as well cash in on it as we aren't getting anything out of it right now.

"NO" TO BOND ISSUE

Chamber of Commerce Votes. The proposed $750 million state bond issue is disapproved by the directors of the Princeton Chamber of Commerce and Civic Council. A 12-to-2 vote against it was recorded at a recent meeting of the organization's directorate, which favors instead a broad base tax

The directors of the Princeton chamber thus agree with the State Chamber of Commerce, which is strongly urging businessmen and others to vote "no" on both the public building construction and the public roads and highways questions. Both proposals will appear on the November ballot.

Information on the $750 million bond proposal, compiled by the state chamber, are available at the Princeton chamber office at 55 Palmer Square West. Local chambers are not required to follow either national or state chamber policy.

Public Library Overlooked.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I have read with interest the reports in the local newspapers on the attitudes of the Borough and Township candidates for public office concerning what they regard as the principal issues before the communities. With dismay I found no reference (by them) to the crying need for a new Public Library.

Am I correct in believing that this is merely an oversight on their part? I venture to hope that in the future the candidates will reveal their attitudes on this important matter.

Both the Borough and Township have passed ordinances to purchase and hold jointly for three years the parking lot on the southeast corner of Witherspoon and Wiggins Streets as a possible site for the new Library. Reports on architectural plans for the new Library are expected in a few months from the Trustees of the Princeton Library. When this report is out the problem of whether or not the Princeton community shall continue to use the present crowded and potentially unsafe quarters will be squarely before the Princeton authorities.

The able and conscientious Librarian of the Public Library and her staff are striving to serve us with less than one-half the number of books which a population of our size requires. Of the books at hand, thousands are presently stored for lack of space. I ask our public-spirited candidates for office to mingle with the students and readers crowding the Library on any late afternoon and report to us on what they see and infer.

Answers Asked

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is an open letter to the Mayor and Council and to the Westminster Choir College:

I noted in this week's press that, when a question was raised as to the closing of part of Franklin Avenue, the Borough School Board president stated that "removal is not in the foreseeable future." It was also said that the Borough would grant ownership rights in the street to Westminster Choir College and that Franklin Avenue would remain a public thoroughfare, as are certain University-owned streets. As I understand it, this means that the Choir College could close the street at its pleasure, as is the case with the imminent closing of College Road by the University.

In view of the importance of Franklin Avenue and the effect its removal at any time would have on numerous Borough and Township residents, the following inquiries should be answered:

To the Mayor and Council of the Borough: Has the Borough agreed to turn over the street to the Choir College, or does it intend to do so?

To the Westminster Choir College: If the Borough does turn over Franklin Avenue, does the College intend to close the street and, if so, when?

Sincerely yours,
ADRIENNE M. ROOKS
152 Guyot Avenue

Editor's note: Dr. Lee Bristol, president of Westminster Choir College, told TOWN TOPICS this week that choir college trustees authorized the sale of Westminster property to the Borough for its school on the one condition that Franklin Avenue be "returned" to the choir college.

Westminster plans a "contiguous campus," Dr. Bristol said, although "how soon we will take up Franklin Avenue remains to be seen. We don't know how soon we will do anything about Franklin, or what alternative is contemplated."

Dr. Bristol also said that the college will meet shortly with campus planners in regard to a new master plan for the campus and "we will have a new building in the predictable future."

Children Need School.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

This is an open letter to the voters of Princeton Borough:

We wish to reaffirm our wholehearted support of the Board of Education's proposed new Elementary School. Our children need this new school! It is up to us, the voters, to give it to them!

We strongly urge all voters to come out and cast their vote in favor of the referendum on October 15.

Thank you for your support.

School Support Asked.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

A couple of years ago I wrote a letter to your paper commending our Borough Board of Education for the excellent service they were rendering our community. At that time I endorsed their plans for building a new school to replace our present antiquated Nassau and Witherspoon Schools.

Today I have received a brochure with the proposed plans for such a new Elementary School.

I have been a resident of the borough all my life, a graduate of Princeton High School and a grandmother of four who are at the present time enrolled in our public school system. I would like to URGE all registered voters to vote in favor of this new proposed school on October 15 between the hours of 5 to 9 p.m.

We have in the Princeton public schools a system beyond compare in its excellence. Let us now give our teachers, our children and grandchildren the proper facilities needed to be consistent with our high educational standards.

Again, may I personally thank the present board of education, the superintendent of schools, the Citizens Committee, and the Educational Advisory Committee for the many hours sacrificed unstintingly in presenting this much needed project and plan for the voters approval.

MRS. PAUL O. ROEDIGER
361 Nassau Street

For the Record.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Two weeks ago you listed my name as a member of an advisory committee on the Township school budget. Last week you stated that I had decided not to serve on the committee "as he had originally planned".

The fact is that nobody spoke to me about the committee until after my name appeared on the list in your newspaper. When a member of the Board of Education did thereafter speak to me, I declined to serve on the committee because I am a member of the Joint Committee on Municipal Operations and felt that service on another municipal committee at this time might be inconsistent with my duties on the Joint Committee.

I don't like to make a big point of something that is of no interest to most people. On the other hand, I don't like to have it appear that I agreed to take on a job and then changed my mind.

STANLEY C. SMOYER

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We are writing in the interest of the presentation of free speech and free debate in the local press. We think that the suppression in the Princeton press of criticisms of the University and Community of Princeton is a disservice to all. We refer to the serious charges made by Attorney Bruce Wright in his speech to a group of 400 persons in Witherspoon School Auditorium, Thursday evening, September 12.

Mr. Wright, a member of the Bill of Rights Commission of the Bar Association of N.Y.C., and Chief Justice of the Yale Law School Moot Court of Appeals, is an important Negro spokesman. He was reared in Princeton; his mother, Mrs. Alice Wright, his sister, Mrs. Alexander Hoagland, and brother, Robert, still reside here.

Clearly, he is well qualified to question racial attitudes in Princeton. Yet not a word uttered by him appeared in print in Town Topics or The Princeton Packet. (Town Topics, in a perfunctory resume of the meeting sponsored by the Princeton Association for Human Rights, excommunicated him by anonymity, a curious thing to do!)

Recently, both the Community and the University have acted toward correcting a num-

FOUR HANDS AT WORK

For Symphony Concert. Louise Strunsky and Malcolm Peyton used to be teacher and pupil, but now they are partners, rehearsing for their performance of Mozart's Concerto for Two Pianos in E Flat, which they will play October 28 at the opening concert of the Princeton Symphony Orchestra. The concert will be held in McCarter Theatre.

One of the founding members of the symphony, Mrs. Strunsky was soloist in a performance with the organization seven years ago. Mr. Peyton has written two compositions for the Princeton symphony: a violin concerto and "Two Pieces for Stringed Orchestra," but he has not performed with the group until now.

SYMPHONY ARTISTS: Louise Strunsky and Malcolm Peyton will be heard in Mozart Piano Concerto during first Princeton Symphony Concert on October 28.

Mrs. Strunsky studied at the Juilliard School on a fellowship and was a student of Ernest Hutcheson, former president of the school. Mr. Peyton was graduated from Princeton in 1954 and received his master of fine arts degree from the university in 1956. He has taught at Princeton and conducted his own compositions in New York performances at Town Hall and the Carnegie Recital Hall.

Besides the Mozart concerto, the Princeton Symphony Orchestra will play Noel Sokoloff's violin concerto in premiere performance, with Joseph Kovacs as soloist, and the Dvorak cello concerto with David Wells as soloist. Nicholas Harsanyi will conduct.

WEINRICH TO PLAY

19the Century Music. A program of 19th century organ music will be presented in the University Chapel this Sunday at 3:30 p.m. by Carl Weinrich, Chapel organist.

Cory S. Kammler

An old hunter was telling us something odd about tracking rabbits. He said that many people are fooled into thinking the rabbit has run in exactly the opposite direction. It seems that the hare leaves a triangle in the snow which points backward because both front feet touch the ground together leaving only one hole, and the two large hind feet strike the ground apart, but far ahead of the front feet, so the apex or front of the triangle (formed by the front feet behind the back feet) actually points away from where the rabbit has run. Darned clever, these hares, eh? You might say they are pretty foxy, but you know, most of us are easily fooled by things we have not had much experience with. And, for sure, in the buying of many products and services today one needs professional information. Even the professional occasionally gets stung, unless he deals with firms of established integrity. That is why we consider our business a public trust. We are dedicated to serving you with utmost care for your pocketbook and your friendship. Kammler Buick-Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport. WA 1-2222.

FIVE YEARS AGO

October 9, 1958. The English Shop had, in the words of its owner, just undergone its "biggest clearance yet." About 250 suits, valued at approximately $15,000, had been stolen from the store in what police called "one of the biggest" burglaries in the history of Princeton crime and "a well-executed, professional job."

Despite the tongue-in-cheek suggestion by shop owner Eric Mihan that the thieves "come in for free alterations," apprehension of the robbers was made in Philadelphia. A policeman there, making a routine check on a car, eyed an exceptionally large number of suits on the back seat, and that was the end of the trail for the

Speed Rates Changed

The State Highway Department has revised speed zoning along Route 206 (Stockton Street) in the Township and Borough.

Speed limits between Stony Brook bridge to the southerly line of the Borough have been lowered from 50 to 45 miles per hour. From the Borough corporate line to the intersection of Bayard, the new limit is 35 m.p.h. where it used to be 30 in portions.

School zone limits will remain the same. The new regulations will become effective within two weeks when new signs are posted.

trail for the tweed-happy hooligans.

A Princeton University sophomore had rediscovered the horse, both as a means of transportation and of making money. Avoiding the University's "no-car" rule, Eric Grinnell had inaugurated his unique horse and carriage taxi service the preceding weekend.

Business was booming for Grinnell, his horse and his refurbished 1878 Brewster Brougham. He had already had about 20 bookings for upcoming football weekends at a rate of $5 an hour or $3 a half hour.

After a 28-0 whumping by Rutgers the preceding weekend, Princeton's football team proned Columbia by a 43-8 count. The speed of the Tiger backs provided a cooling breeze for the outmanned Columbia team, but otherwise it was a long, long afternoon for the Lions.

TEN YEARS AGO

October 7, 1953. For the preceding two years, partisans of Rutgers had been given no choice but to tag their automobiles with orange and black license plates. The State Department of Motor Vehicles, however, had apparently taken the situation to heart, and the renewal inserts for 1954 were being made in Rutgers' colors — bright scarlet and white.

Consolidation of Borough and Township, up for vote in November, was getting plenty of support in 1953. Former Mayor Charles R. Erdman Jr., former Mayor Minot C. Morgan Jr., and the Princeton League of Women Voters all strongly endorsed it.

In fact, just about everybody seemed in favor of it except Joe Voter. The proposed merger was to be defeated by a 3-2 margin at the polls.

A young Princetonian had spent the preceding weekend in Detroit by setting some kind of hitch-hiking record — the 1,300-mile round trip in three and a half days had cost him $3 for travel. Thumbing rides by plane as well as car, he made it all the way out and back for free until he got to Somerville at 3 a.m. Monday morning. From there he took a taxi, and that's what cost him the $3.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

October 14, 1948. Scheduled to speak in Princeton at a political rally was 260-pound Edward F. Prichard, Princeton graduate credited with having prepared many a campaign speech for the late Franklin D. Roosevelt. He it was who remarked on being drafted into the army during World War II: "They've scraped the bottom of the barrel, and now they've taken the barrel itself."

Skillman & Skillman, Princeton realtors, were offering for sale in October, 1948, a four-room house, excellent condition, half-acre of land, garage, four miles from the center of town. The price? $6,500.

ber of injustices delineated by Attorney Wright. For example, the Princeton Housing Group has over a thousand signatures of families pledging to welcome all persons into their neighborhoods and to refrain from discriminatory practices in real estate. PHG currently is engaged in a city-wide campaign to enroll the majority of Princetonians in this pledge of fair play. It is understood that the University on its part is making a protracted effort to right the kind of wrong of which Bruce Wright was a victim. It unofficially was reported at the meeting that 16 Negroes, of various nationalities, currently are enrolled at the University.

These, and similar constructive measures in the fight, need and deserve to be publicized. The press has that responsibility.

Editor's note: The activities of the Princeton Housing Group and of PAHR, the Princeton Association for Human Rights, have been consistently and extensively reported in TOWN TOPICS, and members of PAHR were "Men and Women of the Week" last week. The story in this week's issue on life in Princeton from the Negro point of view appears on page one and has been in preparation for some time. Mr. Wright's remarks are included in this article.

His comments to the PAHR meeting concerned life in Princeton as it was some 35 years ago, and in the opinion of the editors, are considerably more significant when reported in the same story with life as it is today. PENN NEXT IVY FOE

Tigers Have Defensive Edge. A Princeton football team that is beginning to shape up as the best defensive unit to represent the Tigers in more than a decade will play host to Pennsylvania Saturday. Upwards of 20,000 are expected for the 2 o'clock kickoff, with the Orange and Black hoping to defeat the visiting Quakers for the fourth straight year.

Princeton's problem hinges on the fact that for the third week in a row, it will play an opponent which would rather win this game than any other on its schedule. First Rutgers, for which Princeton is THE game; then Columbia, its hopes set on defeating the Tigers for the first time since 1945; now Penn, for which a victory Saturday would serve as the springboard for its first good season since 1959.

With an attack that bogged down consistently against Columbia, Princeton cannot hope to coast against the fired-up squad that former Princeton coach John Stiegman will bring into Palmer Stadium. The Tigers did a year ago at Philadelphia, and while the final score remained satisfactory, it was Penn which dominated the game completely for the final three periods.

In the first 12 minutes, Princeton rolled through Quaker defenses for 21 points. Thereafter, it was the Quakers who threatened continuously, driving deep into Tiger territory repeatedly and falling short of an upset only because five errant passes were picked off by Princeton defenders. It was a 21-8 final.

Tigers at Full Strength. Expectations are that Dick Colman will have virtually every player on his squad ready for the second Ivy game of the season. Tailback Pete Porietis, held out of action at New York with a bruised knee, and reserve guard Ned Porter should be ready. There is some question about junior John O'Brien, potentially a good wingback who has seen little action the past two seasons because of chronic injuries.

For the third Saturday in a row, Princetonians will watch to see whether their team can develop a passing attack to go with a ground game that is averaging better than 250 yards per Saturday. A variety of backs have completed no more than four out of 16, and some of the tosses have been wobbly enough to embarrass a good touch football player.

If anyone is going to develop as a passer for the Tigers, it will be tailback Don McKay, whose performance is satisfactory statistically (3 for 6) but who ranks with the rest in not having a completion to his credit when the running game has been in trouble. Seniors Hugh MacMillan and Pete Porietis haven't developed the passer's touch after two years, and the wingback throwing occasionally reaches the point where it is dangerous. A characterless toss by Jim Rockenbach was intercepted by Columbia Saturday and only a last-ditch tackle by Cosmo Iacavazzi prevented an 82-yard return for the touchdown that would have given the game to Columbia.

Penn Can Pass, Can't Run. Lacking good brokenfield runners for the past three seasons, Penn does not appear to have solved the problem in 1963. The Quakers were held to 97 yards on the ground by a good Dartmouth defense and bogged down within the 15-yard line three times.

Tailback John Owens connected on 12 of 20 passes for 104 yards and should give Princeton some trouble Saturday. A 205-lb sophomore, Bruce Molloy, is well-regarded as his replacement. Bill Paul is the blocking back and field general; Frank Way, Tom Elgar and John Geisel are among the principal ball carriers.

Up front, Captain Fred Jaffin, 201-lb center, and 215-lb tackle Siegfried Molnar are the pick of the linemen. The Quakers do not have one of the Ivy League's biggest lines, averaging with Princeton around 204.

ROBERTS CONTAINED

By Tough Tiger Defense. "Baseball," they will tell you, "is a game of inches." On Saturday at Baker Field, football fell distinctly into that category, too.

Princeton emerged a 7-6 victor only because the wheed-up Lions twice were stopped short of the distance they needed by less than 12 inches. Good diagnosis and fine tackling were to Princeton's credit as it

BOB KEYES
Princeton End

A year ago, he was in the Marines, and if he'd still been there last Saturday, Columbia might well have scored its first victory over Princeton at Baker Field since 1932.

Bob Keyes, who originally entered college with the Class of 1963 but later put in two years of service before returning to the campus, made the switch at Blairstown from blocking back to defensive end. When he reported for practice on September 1, he wasn't to be found on a depth chart that ran five deep.

Quickly, however, he showed himself highly adept at pinning a moving ball carrier in his tracks, and the job of shoring up the defensive end play—a glaring Princeton weakness all last year — took a big forward step. When the season opened, Keyes was second on the depth chart, right behind the veteran Bill Howard.

In a 7-6 game, one tackle can make the difference. Keyes made two which kept the balance in Princeton's favor as the Tigers battled what may well be the toughest Ivy foe on their October schedule.

In the second quarter, the lithe, deceptive Archie Roberts rolled out to his left, looking for a receiver to complete the two-point play that would have given the Lions an 8-7 lead. Seeing none open, he ran, Keyes coming up fast to nail him less than six inches short of the goal line.

In the final period, Columbia had reached the Princeton 22, fourth and a foot to go. If the Lions scored, time would not permit retaliation by Princeton.

Harry Hersh, Columbia halfback, took a handoff around his right end. Keyes pinned him first, the invaluable Cosmo Iacavazzi providing tackle insurance from his linebacker post. When the measurement was made, there was still virtually a foot to go.

"When teams are evenly matched," so the adage goes, "pick the one with the best defense." Bob Keyes' play at end this fall will be among the chief reasons the edge may go to Princeton in a tight ball game.

First in a Decade

When Princeton defeated Columbia by one point Saturday, it marked the first time in exactly ten years that the Tigers had won a game by a single point.

The opponent was the same, too — Columbia — on October 3, 1953, in Palmer Stadium. The score was 20 to 19, Royce Flippin throwing a long pass to Homer Smith to give the Tigers victory in the last 23 seconds.

Having lost not one but two games (Colgate and Cornell) by a single point a year ago, Saturday's outcome was particularly tasty on the Tiger's sweet tooth.

Sports In Princeton

held the losers to 91 yards running and a lone touchdown — a week after Columbia had walloped Brown, 41 to 14.

In the second period, Bob Keyes (see "We Congratulate") stopped Archie Roberts just short of the goal line on an attempted run for a two-point conversion that would have made it an 8-7 final for the Lions. Toward the end of the final quarter, Columbia drove deep into Princeton territory, needing only a couple of feet for a first down that would very possibly have set up the winning TD. When the chain came out from the sidelines, the distance between the ball and the stake was about six inches.

Although they yielded a touchdown to Columbia on a 76-yard march that was consummated in a dozen plays, the Tigers fought off enough thrusts by the New Yorkers in the second half to earn honors as a solid defensive team. Four times, the home team was well into Princeton territory. On three of them, a field goal failed; on the last, the Tigers held three times after Columbia had them in a second-and-one situation on the Princeton 22.

Roberts is all that has been said of him: a highly skillful passer (12 for 19 worth 118 yards); a fast, shifty, runner (11 carries for 33 yards and a touchdown) and a fine two-way player who contributes his share on defense. As has so often been the case in other years, however, Columbia did not have enough to go with Roberts. The Lions lacked a good ball carrier and adequate reserve strength, and when Princeton's pass defense was aided by a constricted area the closer Columbia came to the goal line, six points were all the losers could muster.

Columbia keyed on Iacavazzi so thoroughly that it had to yield elsewhere. McKay's first-period 44-yard run around right end for a touchdown was made possible (1) by a defense that was undershifted to protect against Iacavazzi and (2) by Dick Springs' fine block on the only tackler who had a shot at the Tiger ball carrier. Charlie Gogolak's picturesque conversion made it 7-0 as early as 9:25 of the first quarter, but as matters turned out, the Tigers were through scoring for the day.

Actually, they hobbled themselves on several occasions. A second TD seemed imminent in the second quarter when McKay spun out around his left end the Lion 15, only to fumble and lose possession. On other occasions, MacMillan had a long gainer and possible TD when wingback Sonny Tufts was in the open but the pass wobbled short, end over end; four out of five aerial attempts failed as the Tigers tried to beat the first-half clock to get in field goal position; and Rockenbach's wounded - duck pass was intercepted after a penetration to the Columbia 13.

The close contest provided a number of problems for the officials, whose failure to rule properly could have affected the outcome of the 7-6 contest. In the first period, Columbia fullback Ed Malmstrom was tackled well before a pass reached him, but no interference was called against Princeton.

On a third quarter punt return, Roberts threw a lateral to Harry Hersch which was tossed three or four feet forward, Columbia gaining 23 yards on the undetected violation. In the final period, the Lions were credited with a forward pass that was obviously trapped, not caught, and helped keep the Columbia drive toward a potential winning touchdown in motion.

With a better passing attack than Princeton, underdog Penn could upset the Tigers Saturday. The big, relatively deep Quaker squad also has a full share of the vital eagerness to win.

Princeton has, however, the two basic elements in football going for it — a good running game and a solid defense. The latter will have more trouble coping with Penn's single wing than Rutgers' or Columbia's T have provided in the past two weeks, and the Tigers will do well to win by more than a single touchdown.

PITS TO TEST DEFENSE

Against Hunterdon Central. The Princeton High School football team will test its newly-found defensive strength here Saturday against Hunterdon Central. To accommodate those who may also wish to see the Tigers of Princeton University in action, the game will start at 11 a.m.

Although the two schools will be meeting each other for the first time, it will not be the first time they have met unofficially. Prior to the present season, the two tested their strength against each other in pre-season scrimmages.

Both will enter the fray with 1-1 records. Following a 19-13 triumph over Belvidere in its opener, Hunterdon was shotout last week, 20-0, by Phillipsburg Catholic. This was nothing to be ashamed of, according to PHS coach Dick Wood, who reported that Phillipsburg has been consistently strong through the years.

The offensive alignment of Hunterdon — with T behind an unbalanced line — will force the Little Tigers to make some adjustments in the defense, Wood reported. "Most of the schools we meet use a balanced line," he said.

"Hunterdon should be strong," Wood added. "We've never played them before when it counted and it should be a good test."

Off its fine 9-0 victory over Steinert Saturday, PHS gained momentum and increased confidence. Physically, the team is fit, with the possible exception of guard Jeff Lowe who received an injury Saturday to his knee.

Defense Excels. Awesome, hard-charging, spirited, determined, impenetrable—Consult Webster for the gamut of adjectives, — all could be used to describe the inspired defense that PHS employed with chilling effectiveness Saturday against Steinert High School. Put more simply by Wood: "The defense really did a job."

At the outset the perpetrators of this massive resistance must be named. On the line it was Roy Ballinger, Jim McKeever, Nick Long, Mike Hawk, Andy Kully and Jim Boynton. Larry Madden and Peter Webber were the linebackers and Bruce Tippi and Tom Fasanella the defensive halfbacks. Playing in his first varsity game, transfer student Dave Van Ness turned in a creditable performance at safety.

Even more remarkable is the fact that this defense was noticeably absent during the team's opener a week ago against North Plainfield. At the time, Wood reported that "defensive lapses" had hurt the team considerably.

Chief credit for the turnabout goes to defensive coach Jerry Groninger. Groninger

HE WAS THE TRIGGER: Nick Long triggered Steinert's downfall Saturday when he broke through to spill a Spartan runner on the six-inch line for a nine-yard loss. His play led to a blocked punt moments later which provided PHS with a 2-0 margin, all it needed in its ultimate 9-0 triumph.

rervamped the entire defensive backfield. "Not only did Groninger reshuffle personnel, he made some changes in the basic philosophy of our defense," Wood recounted.

Whatever mixture of the practical and the philosophical Groninger instilled in the squad, it responded with a fine performance in the first half, the deepest the Spartan invaders penetrated was to the PHS 46. In all, their total offense measured a trifling 28 yards; 60 for the entire game.

Nick Long, an outstanding guard all afternoon, triggered the first of two defensive sparklers that were to net the Blue and White all the points it needed. With Steinert on its own ten, Long broke through and rode the ball carrier backward, before wrestling him down on his six-inch line.

Three plays later, Steinert was forced to punt. But the kicker, who could stand back only ten yards to keep from going out of the end zone, never had a chance. A wave of white and blue shirts engulfed him.

So vehement was the rush that the opposite PHS ends, Boynton and Ballinger, collided with each other on the way in. As Boynton, McKeever and Kully converged, the ball bounced off this solid wall of beef and out of the end zone.

Walstad Scores. Later, tailback Paul Walstad salted the game away when he scampered 69 yards off tackle. Once Paul got past the virtual eight-man line of the Spartans, he cut to his left, and outran the three remaining defenders. Greg Seitz booted the extra-point.

For their part, the visitors just weren't going anywhere. The Spartan backs couldn't shake the relentless pursuit and gang-tackling of the Little Tiger forward wall.

To add to its woes, Steinert's passing was equally ineffective. Larry Madden intercepted two in defense of his title as the team's leading pass defender—a title he won last year. The losers completed only two of 11.

In addition to the fine play of Madden, Wood singled out the running and short passing of Walstad. Walstad seems to play better every week, "Wood said. Of the 173 yards gained rushing by PHS, Walstad carried for the bulk of it.

Definitely the play of the two guards, Long and Hawk, deserved praise, in Wood's opinion. Others include Jeff Lowe and McKeever and the punting of Jim Case.

Even former PHS star Jack Hawkins deserves credit for an assist. Jack, now playing for the West Chester Rams, was helping Wood scout the Steinert defenses. He noted that their punter not only was slow in getting his kicks off but took two steps before kicking the ball. The blocked punt is now history.

COOK IN GOLF FINALS

At Springdale, Brud Cook, last year's winner, has reached the finals in the annual men's championship at Springdale. He is scheduled to play the winner of the Bob Shaw-Gerry Lauck match on Sunday, after Shaw and Lauck meet on Saturday.

Cook beat Ken Dawes, 8 and 6, in the semifinals. In the top half of the draw, Shaw edged George Young, 1 up in 19 holes and Lauck defeated Eddie Donovan, 1 up, to become semi-finalists.

Maury Mather will meet John Becker in the finals of the second flight. Mather beat Dick Judge, 2 and 1, and Becker had previously beaten Don Donahue, 4 and 3, in the semifinals.

No further matches have been played in either the third or fourth flights. Jim Daly is a finalist in the fifth flight after a 3-and-1 win over Glen Miller.

HOLTS, GOETZES REPEAT

In Carnegie Sailing. Phil and Rob Holt and Bill and Rick Goetz repeated as winners in the Carnegie Sailing Club races last Sunday.

The Holts took honors in the Penguin class on Lake Carnegie with three victories in five races for a total of 46.2 points. Runners-up were Bob Wilson, Harry Cooke, Dexter Miller, John Reeder, Walt Foster, Art Keiser, Ed Metcalf, Bob Wyllie and Tom Huntington.

The Goetz father-and-son team won four of five GP-14 races for 27.1 points. George Carl was second with 14.7 points, followed by Jerry Lawson, Mars Vanderwaart and Walt Gibson.

TWO REGATTAS PLANNED

For Lake Carnegie. The Carnegie Sailing Club will hold two regattas this weekend for Penguin class boats. The annual Touchdown Bowl event will take place Saturday, and Sunday will mark the inauguration of the Walter B. Jefferson Jr. Memorial Regatta.

Saturday's contestants will race in the morning and attend the Princeton-Penn football game in the afternoon. In the past, the event has attracted from 35 to 50 competitors.

Boats will start and finish off the dock at the northeast end of the Lake. The public is invited, but access to the dock will be prohibited except to competitors.

The Jefferson Memorial event will begin at 2 p.m. Sunday and will include a series of handicap races. Mrs. Jefferson, wife of the late Princeton sailing enthusiast and water company official who died in March, will present the winner's trophy.

Sanctioned by the International Penguin Class Dinghy Association of Baltimore, the Carnegie club holds races every Sunday afternoon in the spring and fall for Penguins and GP-14 sloops. The Penguin boat is an 11½-foot cat-rigged centerboard dinghy.

Three-Day Squad from Gladstone, include Michael Plumb, Bernard Traurig and Miss Dorothy Knocke. Plumb was on the U.S. gold medal winning team at the Pan American Games held in Brasilia last spring.

The show is under the direction of Major Dezso Szilagyi and will include a number of Princeton riders. Competition will be in three divisions — riding, dressage and combined.

The U.S. team is coached by Stefan von Visy. Visy said he feels the Princeton show will provide valuable experience for squad members who will participate in the Olympics at Tokyo in 1964.

HUN II IMPROVES

Germantown Friends Next. Still looking for its first victory, a nevertheless improved Hun football team will play Germantown Friends here Saturday in a Penn-Jersey League contest. Game time will be 2:30.

If Hun is to make a mark in league competition this fall, the time to start winning is with Germantown Pennington, which dominated the league in 1962, is not as strong this year and the title is up for grabs. One of the teams picked to give Pennington trouble is Germantown.

The Quakers and Pennington met Saturday. Pennington trailed in the first quarter but managed to emerge with a 14-12 triumph. Hun and Pennington battled to a 0-0 tie two weeks ago in the opener for both schools. Comparative scores, then, would indicate that Germantown and Hun will be evenly matched.

Hun will have two things in its favor: a stingy defense and the return of end Lonnie Kaplan, offensive and defensive standout for the Red and Black. While not boasting any explosive offense of its own, Hun hopes to prevent the Quakers from scoring more than it does.

Not Disappointed. Though his team lost a 14-12 squeaker at Perkiomen Saturday, Hun coach Hawley Waterman said that he was not disappointed in the team's performance. He indicated that Perkiomen was definitely superior to Pennington in ability and that his players showed "great improvement."

After the home team had scored on a 10-yard pass in the second period, Hun countered with an 11-play, 55-yard scoring drive. Quarterback Mark Savidge banged over from four yards out. The two-point conversion attempt misfired when Perkiomen put the rush on Savidge, who had a receiver in the open.

Hun grabbed the lead in the third quarter, going 20 yards along the ground with Savidge again scoring, this time from the one. Back to punt, Perkiomen presented Hun with the scoring opportunity when its center passed the ball awry and Hun recovered on the 20.

After Perkiomen had regained the lead on a 55-yard scoring aerial, Hun had an excellent chance to push over a go-ahead TD. Late in the final period, but with enough time left, Hun recovered a Perkiomen fumble on the home-team 16-yard stripe. But in four plays, Hun was unable to move the ball.

WIN STREAK ENDED

For Lawrenceville Eleven. With hopes for a second consecutive unbeaten season destroyed, Lawrenceville's football team will travel to Andover, Mass., Saturday to take on Phillips Academy.

The Larries suffered their first loss in ten games last Saturday at the hands of Episcopal High of Arlington, Va. The decisive touchdown came with one minute remaining in the game to give Episcopal a 12-6 victory.

Bob Byrd went over the goal line for the visitors on a one-yard plunge. Episcopal marched 50 yards on 12 plays in the series. An eight-yard pass was the key play in the Larries' undoing.

The lone Red and Black score followed a third-quarter fumble on the visitors six recovered by Vince Gaudiani. Captain Will Dickey carried the ball over three plays later from the three-yard line.

Earlier, Lawrenceville twice missed scoring opportunities with the ball inside its opponents' 10-yard stripe. Episcopal got its first TD on two plays which collected a total of 54 yards, including a 38-yard end run.

In the fourth quarter the ball did not leave Lawrenceville's end of the field as Episcopal maintained its strong attack. The Larries are now 1-1 for the season.

PBA TO HOLD COURSE

For Hunting Safety. The Patrolmen's Benevolent Association will begin its fifth annual hunter safety course Saturday, October 19 at 8 a.m. The course is open to boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 21 who wish to obtain initial hunting licenses.

Included in the instruction program will be a four-hour class on October 19; two hours on Friday and Saturday, October 25 and 26. Basic fundamentals of firearms, instruction in safety and laws pertaining to hunting will be stressed.

O.J. Wenzel and J.J. Lawson of Princeton, both members of the Mercer County Hunter Safety Instructors Association, will conduct the course. Those interested should obtain application forms at Princeton Borough and Township Police Headquarters, have them filled out and signed by a parent or guardian and bring them to the first class.

RECREATION GAIN CITED

By Township GOP Candidates. "A public swimming pool and skating rink are clearly on the list of future facilities for recreation in Princeton Township," reports Russell Mount, Republican candidate for Township Committee. Mr. Mount's running mate, Walter B Foster Jr., agrees

Mr. Foster points out that Township Committee's record in increasing publicly owned land and facilities for recreation "has been steady and impressive." Land in the Johnson Park area, for example, has been available for hiking, fishing and picnicking since 1956, Mr Foster says, and "several other tracts have been added since then."

The planning and timing of a recreational project as large as a pool and rink must wait for the completion of negotiations between Borough and Township, the two Republican candidates state. It also depends on order of priority and must therefore be weighted against other Township needs, they say.

In describing recreation areas in the Township as part of Committee's "master plan," Messrs. Mount and Foster singled out the Community Gardens property as by far the most elaborate. Recounting the development of this facility, they cited the fact that "in 1963 the Township provided in its budget enough money to clear, drain, grade and prepare for use the entire part of the Community Gardens tract on the southeast side of Route 206."

"The Borough has provided a similar sum," Messrs. Mount and Foster point out, "and this operation will soon be completed." In addition to all of this capital investment and growth, Township Committee has heavily supported the summer playground program, in which about 1,100 children participated each day in Borough and Township, the two candidates say.

"In view of this impressive record," Mr. Mount concluded, "Mr. Foster and I can do no better than to pledge ourselves to continue to add to Township recreation holdings and facilities in the same progressive and responsible way."

OFFICERS NAMED

At Community Park School. Sixth grade student council officers have been elected at Community Park School.

The announcement was made by Eugene Hiringer, school principal, after a busy election week. The officers are Mark Patlovich, president, Robert Patton, vice-president; Ann Bardwell, corresponding secretary; Helen Rayner, recording secretary; and Harry Hall, treasurer.

Princeton Township's high cost of "doing nothing"

(and what you can do about it)

A visitor from a northern New Jersey suburb got his first look at the Princeton area last weekend and was duly impressed by the beauty, the homes and the cultural environment in which we live.

He was also shocked to learn that Princeton Township has no municipal recreational area, no community park or swimming pool. As he pointed out, his town has had such facilities for the past ten years.

"Why," he wanted to know, "has a place as nice as Princeton put off such an obvious need so long?"

It was a difficult question to answer, for there is no logical reason — unless you accept the Township Committee's answer that "it doesn't want to rush into things." But we've been talking about recreational facilities for 20 years!

Even now, the Committee is backing off from the recommendations of a joint Township-Borough Recreation Commission with the timid excuse that such plans will cost money. Yet the fact remains that if the Committee had acted 10 years ago, the cost would have been about one half of today's estimate. And with today's creeping inflation, the longer we delay, the more these facilities will eventually cost. Sooner or later it's a cost we must pay. Why wait until the price is even higher?

What can you do about this? A great deal. First, recognize that the present Township Committee is little more than a private club for one political party. There is no minority representation, nothing to stimulate leadership. Probably without knowing it, the Committee has fostered within itself a tacit understanding not to disturb the status quo. It would rather "take things under consideration" than commit itself. It has bogged down into a body of inaction.

You can wake it up! For years the Township Committee has been completely Republican-dominated. If they were to lose this Fall, they would still control the Committee. But think what such a loss would mean to them! They would correctly interpret it as a warning that Township citizens want action. And they would do something about it — to prevent another defeat in next year's election!

This year's Democratic candidates are unusually well qualified to provide strong minority representation. They have ability. They have ideas. They have determination to move the Township ahead on recreation . . . on civil rights . . . on long-range planning for future needs.

Regardless of your normal party affiliation, this is the year to use your vote as a weapon for action now. Make your vote count by voting for John R. Yost . . . William M. Sloane . . . and Marlene Herzberg. Princeton Township Democratic Forum.

FINE FOR A STARTER. This 9 year old, 7 room house was just that for its present owners until a big house became needed. From a condition point of view, it's hard to believe the house has been inhabited; but at the same time tasteful touches (such as cherry paneled rec. rm.) give it a happily lived-in air. Outside appeal is there, too, in the really delightful landscaping. Pleasant area, convenient also. $28,500

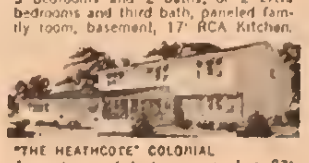
"THE PRINCETON" 82-FT. RANCH
3 bedrooms and 2 baths, or 2 extra bedrooms and third bath, paneled family room, basement, 17' RCA Kitchen.



"THE HEATHCOTE" COLONIAL
4 master-sized bedrooms, sunken 23' parquet floor living room, paneled family room with raised fireplace.

Fine homes are but half the story at Heathcote. Add rich, rolling land. And now, Heathcote offers you planned recreation . . . in a specially developed 26 acre country park!

You'll walk to tennis, baseball, shaded picnic arbors, every family sport. Stroll with your children through private paved walks. There's even a private playground, just for your youngsters, cloistered from hectic traffic or crowds.

Community planning makes big sense. And so do the big new homes at Heathcote. Up to 5 master-sized bedrooms . . . 2 or 3 color ceramic baths . . . your choice of RCA "Connoisseur" or "Magic Chef" Kitchens . . . and outside, the privacy of your own full ¾ acre sculptured lot.

It all sounds so perfect, you'd expect Heathcote to be "way out." It isn't. The price is comfortable. The location, just 6 easy minutes from smart Princeton! Close to shops, supper clubs, concerts, golf — and of course, Princeton University.

Naturally, all improvements, including sidewalks, water and city sewers, are already in and paid for. Low, low taxes too. Imagine all this . . . just 45 minutes from downtown Newark, only 55 minutes from mid-Manhattan!
